73 Allied Bombers Are Lost

Great Fires Set in Raid on Berlin

LONDON, March 25.—More than 1,000 R.A.F., R.C.A.F. and Australian bombers struck at Germany last night for the second time in 48 hours, blasting another huge segment of Berlin into flaming ruins with 2,800 or more tons of explosives and simultaneously hitting the Reich's biggest naval base at Kiel.

(A CBS broadcast from London said returning crews of bombers told of seeing a fire six miles in length in Berlin, apparently in the area of the city's main railway yards. The broadcast said the bombers attacked in waves over a half-hour period beginning at 11 p.m.)

Seventy-three bombers were lost in the twin assaults and in subsidiary attacks on unspecified objectives in western Germany. The loss was the second highest ever suffered by the R.A.F. bomber command, only six fewer than the record 79 lost in an attack on Leipzig Feb. 19.

13 R.C.A.F. PLANES LOST

Thirteen of the missing planes were from the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Allied daylight operations were on a relatively small scale today, with American heavy bombers apparently taking a recess after hic

Canada's "Tex Rickard" Visits City

Events, Personalities From Past Are Recalled by Noted Promoter

By JACK DELONG

Elwood A. Hughes, the Tex Rickard of Canada, general manager of the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto, greatest annual show on earth prior to wartime suspension in 1941, was an Edmonton visitor Friday.

And the colorful, dynamic Hughes, who looks more like a minister than a promoter, has been much more than "boss" of the biggest show in the world.

In the 37 years which Hughes has devoted to organizing and directing entertainment on a lavish scale, he can claim the following distinctions:

OLYMPIC TEAM CAPTAIN

Captained Canada's first Olympic team, that participated in the great Olympiad of 1906 at Athens, Greece.

Holds record for attendance among individual Canadians at modern Olympic games, having attended the great sporting meet on six occasions as follows: St. Louis, U.S.A., 1904—games cancelled; London, England, 1908; Stockholm, Sweden, 1912; Antwerp, Belgium, 1920; Paris, France, 1924; Los Angeles, U.S.A., 1936.

ELWOOD A. HUGHES

Held at different times three national Canadian championships, in swimming, speed skating and bicycle riding.

Is the only living man who participated in an Olympic marathon race, over the full distance, without being a competitor or official.

He rode the entire distance from Marathon to Athens during the 1906 running of the historic race on a bicycle as attendant to Willie Sherring, Hamilton distance runner, who won the race for Canada.

"COULD HAVE WON IT"

A sprained tendon in Hughes' foot prevented him from participating in the race, which he still maintains: "I could have won."

Since 1941 Hughes has been with the department of national defence in work connected with the use of civic exhibition facilities in all parts of Canada that have been taken over for military purposes. His visit here was connected with operations at the Edmonton Exhibi-

Two Maturities

Details of Sixth Victory Loan Are Announced

OTTAWA, March 25.—(CP)—The bonds of Canada's Sixth Victory Loan will take the form of two maturities, a 10-year and one month issue and a three-year and 10-month issue, it was announced last night by Defence Minister Ralston, acting minister of finance in the absence of Hon. J. L. Ilsley.

The loan campaign, which opens April 24 and will last about three weeks, has a minimum objective of $1,200,000,000. The minimum objective from civilians is $525,000,000 while the balance will be obtained from special names. The objective is the same as the Fifth Victory Loan drive, held last autumn.

DATES OF MATURITY

The new Victory Bonds will mature as follows:

An issue bearing interest at three per cent offered at a price of 100 per cent, maturing at 100 on June 1, 1960, and a shorter issue bearing interest at 1¾ per cent at a price of 100 per cent, and maturing at 100 on

Red Chevron 'Out' For 1st War Vets

VICTORIA, March 25.—(CP)—Defence Minister Ralston has advised the Vancouver Island Red Chevron Association that the Red Chevron will cease to be the distinctive badge of the originals of the First Canadian Division of the First Great War.

Britain has authorized the Red Chevron as the general service badge in this war, Col. Ralston wrote, and Canada, while retaining her silver first year stripe, would use the Red Chevron for second and subsequent years service.

Col. R. Ross Napier, president of the island association, said the effect would be that Canadian veterans of this war will retain their distinguishing silver stripe. While original Canadian veterans of the First Great War would lose any distinction which was implied by the right to wear the Red Chevron.

House Amends Education Act

A bill to amend the Technical Education Act was passed through all stages in the House Friday and referred to the Senate. The bill will make available any unexpended appropriation under the act in the five years following March 31.

Education problems were debated during passage of the bill with several speakers participating. They included Labor Minister Mitchell, Gordon Graydon (P.C.-House Leader), Angus MacInnis (C.C.F.-Vancouver East), G. H. Castleden (C.C.F.-Yorkton), Rev. Stanley Knowles (C.C.F.-Winnipeg North Centre), Rev. E. G. Hansell (N.D.-Macleod) and T. C. Douglas (C.C.F.-Weyburn).

Twenty Post-War Germanies—Or Two?

If the Japanese had quickly won this war and dictated a peace in Washington, they would probably have decreed a dismemberment of the United States. If a victorious enemy is not in a geographical position to include a conquered country in his boundaries, he aims at weakening his victim by cutting up his estate.

What would have been the result of such a decree? With the forty-eight States torn apart, or even regrouped into only six separate ones, a national movement would have arisen simultaneously in all the States of the former Union. Forgetting all past dissensions, and even blotting out the still-existing resentment of some Southern States against the "Yankees", their one aim and one thought would have been: We must again unite!

The very same thing would happen if the Allies tore Germany into twenty parts.

EMIL LUDWIG

The German feeling of nation al unity is almost one hundred and fifty years old. It began when the German and Austrian tribes united to drive out Napoleon's armies of occupation after his Russian defeat.

Up to 1803, there existed more than three hundred independent German states, most of them, ot

Fight Continues

Tunnels Help Nazis Reinforce Cassino Units

By REYNOLDS PACKARD
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Naples, March 25.—German reinforcements have entered Cassino through a series of ancient tunnels, it was disclosed today, bolstering Nazi forces that already have re-captured one-quarter of the ruined town.

Enemy troops now occupy a belt several houses thick running from the southern extremities of the town all the way past Highway 6 into northern Cassino, to within about 250 yards of a wall which marked the most advanced point which Allied Fifth Army troops had reached before the big air bombardment of March 15, British United Press war correspondent James E. Roper reported in a front dispatch.

"Heavy fighting continues in Cassino where the general situation remains unchanged," the communique said.

NETWORK OF TUNNELS

Three tunnels dug under the town in the 16th century—in connection with searches for buried treasure, according to local tales—enabled the Germans to move their troops from one strongpoint to another, a headquarters spokesman said. In recent years the tunnels had been used as wine cellars.

These underground passages, believed to be 60 feet below the surface in some sectors and 10 to 20 in others, probably explain how so many Germans survived the furious Allied aerial bombardment that virtually obliterated the town on March 15, how the enemy has been able to bring up reinforcements despite the way the Fifth Army's artillery has been raking the outskirts of Cassino, and how more Nazis suddenly appeared up in the Continental hotel after its garrison appeared to have been wiped out.

Airman Married In Burned Church

LONDON, March 25.—(CP-Reuters)—Among the buildings set on fire in the German raid on London last night was a famous church.

Late editions of this morning's Daily Express published a picture showing the tower still burning while incendiaries blazed on the roadway beneath.

A few hours late. Flt. Lt. Dudley Hewitt and Jennifer Hatton was married amid the debris and damage in the church.

National fire service co-operated to ensure that the airman would be married before breakfast as planned. "We will clear the debris away," they said. They did.

Berry Girl's 'Romance' Is Ruled Out By Court; Letters to Actor Read

By GENE HANDSAKER

LOS ANGELES, March 25.—(AP)—A court ruling yesterday prevented Charles Chaplin's lawyer questioning Joan Berry about a romance with another man and attorney Jerry Giesler told reporters: "This closes the door on our books."

Immediately after a brief recess Giesler announced he was through with the cross examination of the government's chief witness in its effort to convict the actor on a Mann Act indictment.

The ruling followed a 58-minute conference at Judge J. F. T. O'Connor's bench in which Giesler said later he had made various offers of proof in resisting the government's objection to his line of questioning.

United States Attorney Charles H. Carr, with a few questions about Miss Berry's visit to Chaplin's Beverly Hills home with a loaded pistol, brought her testimony on behalf of the prosecution to a close.

DISPUTED QUESTION

The question which preceded the lengthy conference and to which Carr made quick objection, was:

"In November, 1942, before you left for Tulsa, did you have a conversation with Hans Reusch in which you said in effect that you were broke but that you knew where you could get some money in Oklahoma from a business man who had to give you some money

Official Soviet Paper Says Enemy Pushed To Where War Began

LONDON, March 25.—(CP)—Proskurov, stubbornly-held German bastion in the Ukraine, has been captured "by storm" by Russian forces, Premier Stalin announced today in a special order of the day.

MOSCOW, March 25.—The official Izvestia proclaimed today that "the Germans have been pushed back to the border where the war started" by Russian armies massing in the foothills of the Carpathians, along the upper Dniester, and almost within sight of the Prut river.

"We are fighting where we fought in the summer of 1941," an Izvestia dispatch reported from the southern front, where synchronized drives by three Red armies appeared to have doomed all German positions east of the Balkans.

The first army of the Ukraine was poised on the north bank of the Dniester for a smash into Bucovina province of pre-war Rumania. The second was slashing in toward the Prut border of Rumania. The third was rolling back the nose of the lettering German salient along the Black Sea.

NAZI ADMISSION

Expect Churchill To Rally Britain For Final Drive

LONDON, March 25.—(CP)—Political circles forecast last night that Prime Minister Churchill's Sunday broadcast would be a summons to Britain for the last great effort against the Axis and said it might prove one of his greatest speeches.

The broadcast at 9 p.m. (2 p.m. M.D.T.) will be beamed to North America and all parts of the Empire where reception time is convenient. A record of the speech will be broadcast at least four times and translations in more than 20 languages will be beamed to Europe.

It was thought here the prime minister would survey questions of international political policy which have emerged in recent months and also might comment on recent discussions regarding the application of the Atlantic Charter in relation to Britain's foreign policy.

To Probe Alleged "Chiselling" on Beer

CALGARY, March 25.—(CP)—Charges that "false bottom" glasses are used in Alberta beer parlors and purchasers of beer receive only a few ounces of beer in each glass will be investigated by the provincial government, Premier Ernest Manning has assured a delegation from the Alberta Federation of Labor, Sam Sligo, Calgary, vice-president of the Federation, told the Calgary Trades and Labor Council, last night.

Mr. Sligo said the matter of "false bottom" glasses was brought up when the Federation presented a brief to the executive committee of the provincial government in Edmonton early this month.

Government ministers were told that while beer parlor customers were supposed to obtain 7½ to 8 ounces in a glass of beer at beer parlors, they actually received only 3 or 4 ounces, Mr. Sligo said. The difference was accounted for by a false bottom in the glass and excessive froth.

Danish Editor Dies of Wounds

NEW YORK, March 25.—(AP)—The controlled Danish home radio said today that 57-year-old Sigurd Thompson, editor of the Copenhagen newspaper, Social Demokraten, died last night of bullet wounds suffered when he was shot in the stomach Thursday night.

Minister Says:

Group on Sales Of Beer, Liquor Meets April 11

The legislative committee appointed to investigate and report upon matters pertaining to the sale and distribution of liquor and beer in Alberta will meet for organization purposes in Calgary on April 11, when dates and places of sittings will be arranged and a secretary appointed, according to Hon. C. E. Gerhart, minister of municipal affairs, and chairman of the committee.

At a preliminary meeting in Edmonton, the committee decided to hold both public and private hearings during its investigations. Sessions will be public when briefs are being presented by organizations or individuals but will be in camera when private business is being investigated.

WRITTEN SUBMISSIONS

The committee will require that all presentations must be in writing and that six copies of each submission must be in the hands of the committee at least seven days before the hearing and present the argument verbally.

It is the desire of the committee to hear all opinions and facts pertaining to the sale and distribution of liquor and beer in Alberta and the hearty co-operation of all is sincerely solicited.

Attorney-General Leaves For Ottawa

Hon. Lucien Maynard, K.C., attorney-general, left Friday night for Ottawa, where he will appear before the House of Commons committee on banking. H. J. Wilson, K.C., deputy attorney-general left for the Dominion capital last Wednesday and will join with the minister in submissions to the committee.

It is expected that Hon. Solon E. Low, provincial treasurer, and minister of education, will leave Monday to appear before the committee.

In "Old Gang"

LONDON, March 25.—(CP)—Once when he was younger, Foreign Secretary Eden used to think there was a "temptation among the old gang in the house of commons to hang on a little longer than perhaps was good for the country." After 20 years in commons, he said in an address, he finds himself one of the criticized "old gang." But, he added quickly, "I feel still the same way I used to."

Noted Canadian Promoter Pays Edmonton Visit

tion grounds, now being utilized as a manning depot by the R.C.A.F.

In an interview obtained exclusively by the Edmonton Bulletin, Mr. Hughes opened the flood gates of memory, to release a torrent of reminiscences from an amazingly colorful life.

Born in Toronto, 50 years ago, Elwood Hughes first wanted to be a surgeon. Then he thought a legal career would be just his dish.

"But I got mixed up in sport and that 'ruined' me," he explained.

FOREFULLY ASSERTIVE

Forcefully assertive, although not offensively so, the short sturdy Hughes says:

The first Wrigley marathon swim at Toronto in 1927 was the biggest thrill to date in his promotional career.

Jack Johnson was the greatest heavyweight boxer of all time.

Gracie Fields and Fannie Brice (Baby Snooks), are the greatest entertainers of the present age.

Rudy Valee, orchestra leader and crooner, has the most winning personality of modern screen and radio performers.

Six-day bicycle racing is his favorite sport.

Canada is the "greatest" country on earth and Hughes has visited every country on earth.

The Canadian National Exhibition will come back bigger and better than ever after the war.

Sectionalism in Canada should be terminated forever. The east against the west attitude is both childish and dangerous to national well-being.

BACK THROUGH YEARS

Seated in his room at a city hotel Mr. Hughes first led his interviewer back through the corridor of the years to a blazing hot day in the summer of 1906. The setting was the ancient centre of culture at Athens. Greece, where the revived Olympic games were being held.

It was the day of the great Olympic marathon race, the event around which the entire set of games has been built up.

The course was the same as the original Olympic marathon in ancient days, from Marathon to Athens.

"And the distance is only 24 miles and not 26. The Swedes became suspicious and measured the distance. They found it to be just 24 miles and although other nations have continued to make the marathon a 26-mile race Sweden held it to 24 which is the true distance," Mr. Hughes explained.

At that time each runner was permitted to have an attendant accompany him over the course, a Greek army officer mounted on horseback also galloped along to see that all rules were strictly obeyed.

DESCRIBES RACE

Hughes described the race as follows:

"I carried towels and stimulants for Sherring. I borrowed an old-fashioned bicycle from a German barber and I want to tell you right now I would rather have run that race on foot than to have made the ride on that wheel.

"It was a blazing hot day and the course for the first 12 miles is all uphill through the Marathon mountains. "And that bike had everything on it that was known of in those days, such as chain guards, mud guards, baskets and the like.

"The road was good but it was all uphill for the first 12 miles.

"I was not allowed to ever go ahead of Sherring. The Greek officer saw to that and there were soldiers stationed behind clumps of bushes all along the course to watch for breaches of the rules. I saw that Greek officer change mounts four times, during the race."

Sheering went to the front at 12 miles and stayed there to the finish, winning by seven and one-half minutes. Gus Swanberg of Sweden was second and a taxi-driver from New York, named Billy Frank, was third.

HAD TOUGHEST TIME

"But I think I had a tougher time than Sherring. I told you about a sprained tendon in my left foot keeping me out of the race. Well, at about the halfway mark the foot gave out again and I had to finish the rest of the distance pedalling with one foot.

"Just before reaching the halfway mark Sherring was all doubled up and seemed about all in. I wetted a towel in one of the numerous mountain streams we crossed and put it over his head and I threw some water over his body. I doused my own head with water and we both walked up the last long, steep hill on the course. From then on it was fairly easy as the going was down hill all the way.

"When Sherring reached the stadium, packed with thousands of excited spectators, Prince George of Greece went to the side of the Canadian runner and ran with him through the stadium to the finish line. The prince was referee-in-chief of the games.

"An almost forgotten sidelight to that marathon was the fact that 30,000 people sitting on the inner sides of the mountains surrounding the stadium narrowly escaped death or serious injury after their combined weight caused a landslide.

BICYCLE STOLEN

"I had to leave the bicycle at the gate of the stadium. I leaned it against the wall and when I went back someone had stolen it."

As creator of the Wrigley swims, Hughes rates finish of the 1927 marathon of 21 miles as his greatest thrill. Here's the main reason:

"That's the only sporting event in history where 50,000 people turned out at 8:30 in the morning."

The race was won that year by a German, Ernest Wirkeitner, who still lives in the east, despite rumors that he was interned.

Prizes for the Wrigley marathon totalled $50,000.

Mr. Hughes rates George Young, Canadian winner of the Catalina swim, as the greatest swimmer of all time.

"I think George hurt his head in that first swim and never fully recovered," he said.

Failure to develop another Canadian champion is thought by Mr. Hughes to have been responsible for the decreased interest in the Wrigley marathons in later years.

GOOD FIGHT PROSPECT

Marvin Nelson, young American, who won the Wrigley three times, would have made a great heavyweight fighter, Mr. Hughes believes, but turned down the latter's offer to develop him as a boxer.

Hughes worked for William Wrigley Sr. for more than 2½ years as public relations man.

For a time in his younger days the Canadian sports promoter worked as sports writer on Toronto dailies and was for a short while sports editor of the Toronto Telegram.

His first assignment important-ance as a sportswriter was at the Johnson-Jeffries world championship fight at Reno, Nevada, on July 4, 1910.

The referee of that contest, selected at the last minute, because of a dispute, was a fellow named Tex Rickard, afterward to become the world's greatest fight promoter.

"I never saw anything so funny as Rickard in the ring that day. He was a gregger drawing card than the fighters.

Rickard entered the ring wearing heavy riding boots, heavy trousers, held up by conspicuous braces and a huge straw hat."

ANOTHER HIGHLIGHT

Another highlight in the life of Hughes was the Dempsey-Firpo fight, but the event that remains a standout in the Hughes mind was not the gaga prodigious battle of Luis Angel Firpo or the time the South American sent the Mannassa Mauler hurtling through the ropes to land in the laps of newspapermen who encircled the ring side. Here's what Hughes remembers so vividly:

"When Dempsey fell out of the ring, about 50,000 persons leaned forward in unison. The sudden shifting of their combined weight broke 50,000 chairs and it was like a tidal wave surging forward. I picked myself up close to the ring ropes and was right next to Damon Runyon in the section reserved for newspapermen.

"No one was hurt."

Dempsey was a great fighter, a real killer in the ring but Hughes thinks that Johnson would have easily mastered Jack the Giant Killer had they met when each was at his best.

"I don't think Dempsey would have laid a glove on Johnson. Johnson had a marvellous defence and his right was like a piston rod."

FINE WAR RECORD

Although he will not speak of it himself, Elwood Hughes is known to have had a fine record in the First Great War in which he served with the first Canadian division. He holds the Distinguished Conduct Medal and the Military Medal for gallantry in the field. He enlisted as a private and finished the war as a staff major. The war years marked the only break in his career as promoter until the present war put him back on special war duties again.

He also holds two life saving awards for rescues of which he will not give details.

His sole recreation is horseback riding.

He has one daughter living in Toronto. Mrs. Hughes died some years ago.

In addition to managing the C.N.E. Elwood Hughes has promoted many prize fights in Toronto and has also dabbled in hockey and other sports. Edmonton's Gordon B. "Duke" Keats, famed centre ice wizard, is well known to the great Canadian promoter.

As president of the Canadian Fairs Association he is personally well acquainted with many westerners. The late Percy W. Abbott, K.C., manager of the Edmonton Exhibition Association for many years, was a close friend. As a former president of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, Hughes was also a close friend of the late Det. Inspector John Litalien.

Cold figures prove Hughes is boss of the greatest show on earth. In 1941, there was an attendance of 1,500,000 during the 14 days the C.N.E. ran.

OPINION OF AIRPORT

"Just the biggest thing on the continent," is how he described the airport set-up in Edmonton.

Asked what the secret of success in promoting is, Mr. Hughes replied:

"Well, there's a lot of luck. You have to guess right often enough to make it profitable. But you've got to have more than luck too. You've got to know people."

Fire Six Miles Long Started In Berlin Raid

ting Germany four times this week. R.A.F. and American light planes were out over the hazy straits and the Berlin radio reported single planes over Germany, apparently on reconnaissance.

The raid on Berlin nearly equalled the heaviest ever made on the devastated capital by another R.A.F. bomber command force Feb. 15, when "well over" 2,800 tons of bombs were cascaded on the city.

"First reports indicate the attack was concentrated and large fires were left burning," an air ministry communique reported.

ALL TYPES OF BOMBS

Bringing the British-American aerial offensive against Germany to its highest pitch of intensity, nearly 1,000 four-engined Lancasters and Halifaxes alone showered hundreds of thousands of bombs ranging from two-pound incendiaries to possible six-ton super block-busters on the sprawling industrial areas of Berlin.

The raid was believed to have brought the Allied Air Command three-quarters of the way toward its goal of knocking out Berlin completely as the nerve centre of the German war effort. More than 33,600 tons of bombs have been dropped on the city, since R.A.F., Dominion and American bombers began their all-out attacks last Nov. 18.

The night raiders were forced to fight their way through swarms of German night fighters to make their bid for a knockout blow at the capital. Nazi broadcasts said German fighters gave battle soon after the hour-long procession of bombers crossed the northwest German coast and claimed a total bag of 102, which was 29 greater than the number of bombers lost.

U.S., Chinese Forces Block Fleeing Japs

Division cut behind the enemy from the east flank to catch an undetermined number of enemy troops between Shaduzuy and the main Chinese force pressing down the valley from Jambu Bum, the mountain dividing the Mogaung from the Hukawng valley to the north, a Southeast Asia Command communique said.

On the central front, on the Indian side of the Burma border, a Japanese column south of the Palel-Tamu road which is driving toward Imphal, capital of India's Manipur state, has "made some further progress to the north," the communique acknowledged.

North of the road, which links Imphal with the Kabaw valley of Burma, another enemy force captured a British position with a strong attack Thursday, but British and Indian troops counter-attacked yesterday to retake the point, Adm. Lord Louis Mountbatten's headquarters announced.

At the southern end of the 500-mile front the enemy was reported making small local counter-attacks in the Mlfdaw-Buthidaung area but British forces advanced at several points to capture Japanese positions.

It's a Cold War

The men of H.M.C.S. Shawinigan estimate their ship picked up about 500 tons of ice in a 17-hour cold snap during heavy weather somewhere on the Atlantic. With this enormous topweight, mostly on the port side, 100 tons of fuel oil were transferred from port to starboard tanks to correct a stiff list. Indicating the thoroughness of the attacking elements, the slender wires of the wireless antenna were encased in five inches of crystal clear ice. Fortunately, no one was in the crow's nest when the foremast broke under the weight of ice.

Details of Sixth Victory Loan Are Announced

March 1, 1948. Both types of bonds will be dated May 1, 1944.

The first interest coupon on the three per cent bonds is for a period of seven months, and in the case of the shorter issue, the first interest coupon is for a period of four months. Subsequent interest coupons become due every six months thereafter. This arrangement continues the practice established in the Fifth Victory Loan and avoids adding to the very heavy volume of coupons which come due in May and November.

"Their is every indication," said Mr. Ralston, that Canadian forces overseas will participate in even heavier fighting during the months to come. It is, therefore, the duty, the responsibility, and the privilege of Canadians in every walk of life to participate to the very limit in the Sixth Victory Loan, and in so doing support the men who are fighting for us.

3,033,000 APPLICATIONS

"During the Fifth Victory Loan there were 3,033,000 applications for victory bonds. It is our hope that this figure will be greatly increased for the Sixth Victory Loan so that once again the financial participation of individual Canadians will hit a new high level of accomplishment."

Stettler Airman On Rescue Plane

HALIFAX, March 25.—(CP)—A tent, a stove and fuel, flash-lights, flares, shovels, markers to guide searching aircraft, and a first-aid kit were contained in a "chute" dropped to the three occupants of a crashed Quebec Airways plane on an ice-floe in the Gulf of St. Lawrence by PO. Murray Horton, of Vancouver, pilot of one of the R.C.A.F. aircraft searching the gulf for the missing men.

PO. Gordon Harrell, Toronto, R.C.A.F. public relations photographer, who was aboard the plane, said Horton dropped the parachute "very neatly—so that it hit the ice about 20 yards from the men who immediately started untying it and setting up the supplies." The crew of the plane included WO2 Roy Pinder, Stettler, Alta., wireless operator.

When they left the area PO. Jarrett said the icebreaker which rescued the men on Tuesday was then about 15 miles away, slowly crashing through the ice.

(The Sorel is due shortly at an east coast Canadian port with the rescued men aboard.)

man-occupied Poland, and claimed that Soviet attempts to force the lower Bug at the other end of the southern front were thwarted.)

Front dispatches said Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's first army had caught the Germans off balance in his wheeling drive 62 miles southward from the Tarnopol-Proskurov sector. The Soviets stormed southward with little difficulty, scattering German regiments, the biggest units mentioned as opposing the powerful Red army columns.

GREAT BOOTY TAKEN

The advance was so swift that the Russians captured two train-loads of intact tanks in the railyards at Gusyatin. Another Soviet unit seized 800 German trucks, dispatches said.

In Bessarabia, Marshal Ivan S. Konev's forces pushed westward toward Zagaikiny, nearly in sight of the Prut river, and struck southward into the outskirts of Balti, main rail junction of upper Bessarabia.

Incessant Soviet armored blows were reported spreading demoralization among the German units despite Nazi orders to stand and fight to the last.

A number of German soldiers were court martialled and shot publicly for cowardice, front reports said, in an attempt to bolster the sagging Nazi morale.

Midfield 5 has been standing idle with salt water in the hole since June 19, 1943.

Defence Begins Fight to Hold Out Confession

By JAMES DEVLIN

NEW YORK, March 25.—(AP)—The defence began a grim fight yesterday at the murder trial of stolid Wayne Lonergan to block admission of his purported confession that he battered and choked to death his wife, Patricia, heiress to $6,000,000, last Oct. 24.

Defence Counsel Edward Broderick called two prosecuting attorneys to the witness stand in an attempt to prove the statement was obtained by subjecting the 26-year-old R.C.A.F. aircraftman to long hours of questioning without sleep.

Lonergan dressed in a dark blue suit, again sat calmly at the counsel table as the attorneys battled over the point that may decide his fate.

HELD KEY TO CASE

The prosecution has said the purported confession is the key to its case and has maintained there was no witness to the crime except Lonergan.

The tall defendant appeared equally unmoved as his alibi was read into the record—a sordid story that involved having unnatural relations with another airman soldier in a friend's apartment about the time his wife was slain in her own apartment.

First, Assistant District Attorney Jacob Grumet, and then his deputy, John F. Loehr, were subjected to a barrage of questions by Broderick concerning circumstances of the purported confession.

Then Lieutenant-Attorney Frank S Hogan, in a brief appearance as a witness, denied he ever had authorized any of his staff to promise Lonergan that he would not be tried for first degree murder if he confessed.

LONG WITHOUT SLEEP

Broderick attempted to show that Lonergan went without sleep for more than 24 hours from the time he reached the district attorney's office in New York until he was booked, in addition to the travel time from Toronto.

He also brought out from Loehr that Lonergan was left alone with two New York detectives in Toronto police station No. 3 for 10 minutes before he signed a waiver to accompany the officials to New York.

Broderick said he intended to call to the stand both detectives and four or five others who participated in a police line-up with Lonergan in New York, in his efforts to break the so-called confession evidence.

60,000 British Miners Striking In New Dispute

LONDON, March 25.—(CP)—Some 60,000 coal miners stayed away from pits in the Yorkshire area today and another 25,000 were still out in the Doncaster area despite an announcement last night that mine owners had agreed to adjust wages of skilled workers.

The president of the Yorkshire Mine Owners' Association expressed confidence, however, that a final settlement would be reached tonight.

Young Windsor Man Killed by Policeman

WINDSOR, Ont., March 25.—(CP)—Max Glassco, 21, Windsor, was shot and killed by a police constable early today when police said, he and three other men were fleeing from a stolen car.

Constable Henry Bird said one shot from his .38 calibre service revolver hit Glassco. Bird said he had called to the four men to stop before firing. Two other men were placed under arrest. Search is continuing for the fourth.

The men arrested are Ray Bangle of Windsor and Herbert Handy of Toronto. They are held on charges of car theft.

Informed of his son's death, Glassco's father said the youth only recently came out of reformatory and had said he was "through with crime, that he was going to go straight."

Liquor STRENGTH and PRICE

"PROOF"—"UNDERPROOF" and "OVERPROOF"

Strength of alcoholic beverages is expressed in degrees of Sikes Scale (adopted in the British Empire 1816). "PROOF" spirit corresponds to 100 degrees on this scale and contains 57.1 per cent of alcohol by volume. If of greater or less strength than this they are termed "OVERPROOF" or "UNDERPROOF" respectively.

Prior to federal regulations most of the liquor was sold at 25 "UNDERPROOF" corresponding to 75 degrees proof spirits or 42.8 per cent alcohol by volume. Now it is sold at 30 "UNDERPROOF" which is 70 degrees proof spirits or its equivalent to 40 per cent alcohol by volume.

As an illustration, and so that the difference between the two strengths can be better understood—if you were to take a 40 ounce bottle of 25 "UNDERPROOF" (42.8 per cent alcoholic strength) liquor and remove 2.6 ounces of the beverage and replace the same amount of water you would have a bottle of 30 "UNDERPROOF" (40 per cent alcoholic strength) liquor as required by the federal regulations.

The Alberta Liquor Control Board sells this liquor to the consumer exactly as it comes from the distillers. A few lines bottled by the Board also come under the strict supervision of the Custom and Excise Department of the Dominion Government. Duties and Excise are calculated on the basis of strength determined by the Dominion Officials.

PRICES AND WHY

The Dominion Government agreed to indemnify the provinces for revenue losses resulting from the new war-time restrictions. The Dominion Government required, however, that the provinces increase liquor prices by $2.00 per gallon to qualify for the indemnity. This increase was in addition to another increase of $2.00 per proof gallon on alcoholic content imposed by the Dominion Government through a revision of Customs and Excise taxes on March 3rd, 1943.

The Alberta Liquor Control Board publishes this information in the hope that the public will reply to those who see fit to pretend that all alcoholic beverages sold in Alberta today are adulterated heavily. The Board also takes this occasion to point out to the public that it is in no way responsible for the present situation which was brought about by regulations imposed by federal authorities. The situation in Alberta is exact'y the same as that existing in every other province of the Dominion where alcoholic beverages are sold.

Technical Education Act Is Amended to Provide Unused Funds for Future

OTTAWA, March. 25.—(CP)—The Commons, working at high speed, last night passed through all stages a bill amending the Technical Education Act to make available any unexpended appropriation under the act in the five years following March 31. The bill now goes to the Senate for consideration.

Labor Minister Mitchell, speaking on a resolution preliminary to introduction of the bill, said that the bill must have royal assent March 31, or the original act will lapse. The resolution was passed after a short debate, the bill introduced and quickly given first, second and third reading.

Mr. Mitchell said that under the original act passed in 1919, the Dominion appropriated $10,000,000 for technical education, with $10,000 for each province and the reminder distributed on the basis of population.

All provinces except Manitoba had taken up their allotment, and now only $147,430 was left, for Manitoba.

NEEDS ROYAL ASSENT

The amendment made possible the expenditure of this sum in conjunction with Manitoba when desired. The bill must have royal assent by March 31, or the original act will lapse.

Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative house leader, said editorially: "Education is provincial control, but a responsibility in respect to it rested with the Dominion.

"The Dominion government must see to it that the question of geography and ability to pay was not so important in the future in providing a child with education. There must be more equality of opportunity for education."

The government should consider national scholarships. They would go a considerable distance in helping brilliant boys and girls obtain the education they deserved.

Mr. Graydon said when the war was over the government must be ready to provide those leaving the services with some preference in educational opportunities.

FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE

Mr. Gradon said the provinces could be aided financially in education and it did not follow a "bludgeon should be held over their heads." Federal help would assist the desired equality in education.

Angus MacInnis (C.C.F.-Vancouver East) said the government should introduce "a comprehensible scheme" of federal assistance to education.

The provinces would welcome further assistance and he agreed with Mr. Graydon the Dominion should only support "reasonable objectives" in making the grants.

Federal government training projects for war now aided technical schools, and it was equally essential that young people should be trained for peace.

More than scholarships was needed to assist education. The children of the poor must be able to remain in school at least until they reached a point where they could see whether they should have further education.

CANADA FAR BEHIND

G. H. Castleden (C.C.F.-Yorkton) said Canada was far behind in education and would have to step up its educational services. Important changes would have to be made in curriculums.

Mr. Castleden said he supported the bill and regretted it did not provide for a new appropriation of $100,000,000 for technical education.

"Why be a piker, make it $200,000,000," said Tom Reid (L.-New Westminster).

Rev. Stanley Knowles (C.C.F.-Winnipeg North Centre) said the original act was being made of technical education grants now although it was regrettable use was not made of them earlier.

Rev. E. G. Hansell (N.D., Macleod) said he favored federal aid to provinces for education especially if there were strings attached." He said he opposed all centralization of power, and any interference with provincial educational autonomy.

TRAINING FOR VETERANS

T. C. Douglas (C.C.F., Weyburn) said he would like to see the government bring down a bill giving Manitoba the $147,000, plus an appropriation to each province to assist the education and vocational training of those leaving the services. Facilities for the training of large numbers of men should be set up.

Mr. Mitchell said he agreed that the provinces should continue to control education. He said it would be a poor thing for the C.C.F. if education was the privilege of the rich, as C.C.F. speakers had claimed. Educational facilities now were available to Canadians generally, but to hear some members speak it would appear there was no educational system at all.

Exchequer Court Will Not Handle Divorce Cases

By FRANK FLAHERTY

OTTAWA, March 25.—(CP)—No plan to make the Exchequer Court of Canada a divorce court for the provinces which have no divorce courts is behind the government's proposal to appoint an additional judge to that court, Justice Minister St. Laurent said last night in the Commons.

The suggestion that divorces now handled by act of parliament be dealt with in the court was made by Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative house leader. Mr. St. Laurent said that until parliament changed a pre-Confederation statute of the province of Quebec no jurisdiction to grant divorces in Quebec could be conferred on any court.

DISCUSSION ON BILL

The discussion took place on Mr. St. Laurent's bill to add one judge to the two already comprising the court.

The bill received second reading, but discussion was adjourned in the committee stage.

Movement of workers from one province to another for jobs in munitions plants had repercussions in the house during discussion of munitions department estimates in the war appropriation bill.

Maxime Raymond, Bloc Populaire leader, complained about a transfer of workers from the closed explosives plant at Nobel, Ont., to war plants in his constituency of Beauharnois-Laprairie. He said it was an injustice to local people who were being laid off or demoted to lower-paid jobs.

MANY FROM QUEBEC

In reply, Lionel Chevrier, parliamentary assistant to Munitions Minister Howe, said some 1,863 workers had gone from Quebec to war industries in Ontario, chiefly at Sarnia, Kingston, the Niagara district and Kitchener.

Later, in discussing economic conditions in Nova Scotia, J. J. Kinley (L., Queens-Lunenburg) said a great deal of labor from other parts of Canada had been brought into that province; more than could be accommodated in available housing.

Mr. Chevrier said Mr. Raymond's criticism regarding movement of workers from Nobel to Ste. Therese, Que., was based on a misunderstanding or an inaccuracy.

Lt.-Col. Arthur Ross (P.C., Souris) said supplies of farm implements had been increased in the United Kingdom during the war. There were more tractors in use there today than there were available in all Canada.

Mr. Howe's statement that plant capacity was not available for farm machinery appeared to be a contradiction with findings of a war expenditures sub-committee which surveyed possibilities of expanding implements' production.

REDUCE RESTRICTIONS

Mr. Howe said steel available in recent months was sufficient for all reasonable purposes and restrictions on its use for implements had been reduced. Malleable castings for farm machinery had been largely imported in the past and Canadian production would have to be built up to meet domestic needs.

The position in this respect would be bettered as soon as possible, Mr. Howe said. Ball bearings were not made in Canada, but there was no regulation interfering with their manufacture.

There was no immediate hope for the release of thin sheet metal for purposes such as roofing as capacity for such production was heavily burdened.

Denies Harboring Deserter

Mrs. Doris E. Bender, 23-year-old mother charged with hiding an army deserter in a "foxhole" beneath her Washington apartment, was allowed to return home to her two children, Barbara, 4, and Phillis, 7 months, after posting bail. Mrs. Bender, denying the charge, explained that the soldier, a friend of her husband stationed in India, had told her he was on furlough.

"Clever Business Woman"

LEEDS, Eng., March 25.—(CP)—Dorothy Elliott, "Lady Bountiful" of Wombell, a little town in Yorkshire, was known as a "clever business woman" who was secretary of two Wombell collieries, and her lavish spending created no surprise.

She built a $15,000 home, a $12,000 Girl Guides quarters, and paid $2,250 for a stained glass window in the town's church.

The district made her a magistrate. She had few friends, did little entertaining, enjoyed no hobby except improving her house.

Last year a colliery official discovered a large overdraft at its London bank. Accountants began to check the books and Dorothy Elliott was charged with stealing more than $400,000.

Doctors testified she had a split personality and could not distinguish right from wrong. But a jury rejected the defence and convicted her on 33 charges. She was sentenced to six years in penitentiary.

Halt Questions About 'Romance' Of Joan Berry

because you had made a trip from Mexico and there is a law against that in the United States and he can't do that?"

Reusch was not further identified.

It was propounded by Giesler, defending the actor against charges involving a trip to New York, where Chaplin met his 24-year-old protege, and came at the start of the afternoon session of court.

The afternoon session was terminated abruptly after Miss Berry broke into sobs upon the introduction of a letter she wrote Chaplin in which she said: "I know what I've done is past forgiving," and "I'm going back to New York."

ARGUE OVER LETTER

There were arguments over another letter Joan wrote to Chaplin from Tulsa. Judge O'Connor ruled out the first page of that letter and all lines of the second page.

During the arguments over the admissibility of the letters, Miss Berry began to cry. She pleaded with the court for a recess and was led sobbing from the court room.

The second letter, which Giesler read, was dated Nov. 18, 1942, it said:

Charles:

"I am sorry for the unbalanced and undisciplined way I have acted —sorry because it's caused you annoyance and embarrassment. I can't ask you to forgive me because I know what I've done is past forgiving.

"COMPENSATED FOR PAIN"

"In this whole stupid mess there are only two things that remained perfect. I never doubted—for one second—that I was to be Bridget." (Apparently a reference to a motion picture role she was to have played for Chaplin. That knowledge compensated for the pain I felt when I knew that I was never really close to you.

"I thought loving you and knowing that you never wanted or would never allow me to become a part of your life was torture, but now that I know that I am not to be Bridget, 'my cup is full.'

"I must admit, though, that after the way I've acted, it's the only thing you could do.

"Thank you for buying the play; thank you for giving up your time to teach me. It was wonderful to have almost been Bridget.

"And tahnk you, Charles, for letting me know you—you, the greatest genius and artist living.

SLEEPLESS NIGHTS

"You never really (underscored) knew of the countless sleepless nights and millions of unsent letters. You'd laugh at them but they were pretty real to me.

"I know you're not interested in my plans, but I'd like to tell you anyway. I'm going back to New York to get married. (There really is a boy who wants to marry me.)

"I'm going back to New York just as I left it. No clothes, no car, no money. Perhaps it's for the best.

"This way it seems as if these past three years have been a dream and I'm happy and content in that dream.

"I hope that 'Landreau' is as great a success as all your other pictures and I hope you personally will find continued happiness.

FORGET "MEAN THINGS"

"Forget all those mean things I've done if you can, and remember instead the stupid girl who ruined the greatest chance the motion pictures has ever offered.

"Always your, Joan."

Earlier Miss Berry said that about Dec. 23 at 1 a.m. she went to Chaplin's home with loaded pistol, entered by breaking two windows, pointed the weapon at Chaplin and later engaged in sexual intercourse with him.

She said she had been at Chaplin's house for an hour or an hour and a half with the gun in her hand most of the time before the act took place. She refused Chaplin's repeated entreaties to release the weapon, she testified.

"Did you keep the gun until the act of intercourse started and when it was completed did you regain it?" Giesler asked.

Miss Berry said that was the case.

TALKED WITH BUTLER

She testified that she discussed with Butler Chaney whether she would be placed back on contract at Chaplin's studio if she gave up the gun.

Before she left the house after giving up the gun, Chaplin gave her about $50 to $60, she testified.

British Columbia Allowance of Beer Is Still Unchanged

VANCOUVER, March 25.—(CP)—Lifting of federal restrictions on beer has as yet brought no change in the amount allowed the British Columbia permit-holder—24 pints monthly—and if liquor board officials decline to say if any increase will be possible.

W. F. Kennedy, chairman of the liquor control board, said yesterday that the demand of permit-holders is being met without the long queues in front of each store which were commonplace two months ago.

Rations in this province are: two dozen pints of beer, or 26 ounces of rye, Scotch or rum; or 40 ounces of gin; or 52 ounces of wine, each month.

Wheat Board Shows Surplus Of $39,872,275

OTTAWA, March 25.—(CP)—The Canadian wheat board yesterday reported a surplus of $39,872,275 in its western division operations for the period, Aug. 1, 1940, to July 31, 1943.

The board's annual statement was tabled in the commons by Trade Minister MacKinnon.

The surplus was made up of $17,900,257 on 1940 crop account; $12,189,831 on 1941 and $9,782,186 on 1942.

A deficit of $8,816,210 resulted from operations in respect to the 1939 crop account in the period Aug. 1, 1939-July 31, 1943.

LIST MAJOR ASSET

The board listed as its major asset at July 31 wheat stocks valued at $184,670,531.

The board is the federal government grain purchasing and marketing agency. It makes wheat purchases from western producers on a quota basis at a rate of $1.25—bushel, basis No. 1 Northern at Fort William.

The board's last report—for the crop year 1941-42—showed a surplus of $4,809,054 on 1941 western division crop account. The deficit on 1940 crop account from Aug. 1, 1940 to July 31, 1942 was $1,364,026. The deficit on 1939 crop account from Aug. 1, 1939 to July 31, 1942 was $10,422,953.

The board holdings of wheat at July 31, 1943, totalled 205,717,938 bushels, compared with 244,474,016 bushels at the same date in 1942.

These holdings represented wheat left over after net sales during the year of 219,329,802 bushels from the 1939, 1940, 1941 and 1942 crops.

NET SALES REPORTED

At July 31, 1942, the net sales for the year ending on that date were reported at 262,662,467 bushels.

In its review of 1942 crop operations, the board said that 167,506,531 bushels were delivered to it by producers in the three prairie provinces. Net sales of 1942 crop by the board totalled 78,210,265 bushels to July 31, leaving 89,296,266 bushels on hand.

The month-end liability of the board in respect of 1942 wheat was $76,103,507 at July 31 representing dues to banks and board agents.

At July 31, 1942, the 1941 crop wheat holdings of the board totalled 160,867,287 bushels. Net sales in the year ending July 31, 1943, were 13,215,114 bushels, leaving 30,467,287 bushels on hand, with a liability to the banks and agents on this crop account of $20,276,474.

The balance of 1940 crop held by the board at July 31, 1942, was 121,966,362 bushels and at July 31, 1943, this total had been reduced to 85,954,425 bushels, with liabilities in respect to this crop of $39,996,052.

DISPOSE OF HOLDINGS

During the year ending July 31, 1943, the board disposed of all its holdings of 1939 wheat, which had totalled 56,728,221 bushels, on hand at July 31, 1942. The liability to banks in respect to this crop was $6,743,253 at July 31, 1943.

In its flax division, the board reported a deficit of 1,978,308 for operations in the period March 19, 1942—July 31, 1943. Flax acquired totalled 13,299,585 bushels valued at $28,471,630 and sales of 10,372,221 bushels returned $21,207,613, while stocks on hand were placed at 2,927,364 bushels.

A surplus of $309,238 on 1942 crop oats and barley account for the year ended July 31, 1943, was reported. Completed sales by the board included 4,052,645 bushels of oats and 4,046,429 bushels of barley with a total value of $4,107,578.

A deficit of $6,715 on 1942 soybean account for the year ending July 31, 1943, was reported.

PAY DRAWBACK CLAIMS

To keep down prices of bread, the board has been authorized to pay drawback claims to millers and other processors of wheat for human consumption in Canada.

The report said that wheat prices had increased in early 1943 and the estimated requirement of $6,000,000 for this purpose was found to be too small. Claims actually settled in the crop year 1942-43 totalled $6,720,032, and further small claims might still be presented.

Dear

Snow this month has been greater than in any other March in the last 10 years with one exception. Between five and six inches has fallen in Edmonton and district. Wintry weather has been the vogue this week, with the thermometer dipping to three above zero. Forecasts are "moderating" today, so we are hoping spring is just around the corner.

Grave Consequences

The Canadian Protestant League has telegraphed members of Parliament protesting about Angus MacInnis' bill to prevent public utterances or the dissemination of material likely to cause discrimination or disharmony on account of race or religion.

This is only one of the many protests which have been levelled against the measure.

On the face of it the proposed law shows the merit of tolerance. In operation it could prove so intolerant as to provoke the most grave consequences.

Suppose, for instance, a combination of circumstances should permit the flooding of this country with immigrants of a highly undesirable type, such as Japanese. The bill would forbid all expressions of objection to it.

Suppose some religious sect were to undertake political projects contrary to the constitutional principles of Canada. It would be illegal to oppose it or even to express opposition to it.

Any tampering with the rights of free speech, even under the guise of tolerance, is a serious and a dangerous business.

Chain Letters Illegal

The plain statement of post office officials that chain letters have not been endorsed by that department and are still illegal will tend to put an end to one of the most infuriating nuisances of modern times.

Everyone will remember how people in the late "twenties" were pestered with these abominable things, how the superstitious and the greedy (which includes most of us) were impelled to devote hours each day to copying idiotic letters, either to gain some ridiculous reward or to avoid some absurd anathema.

And now the custom has been revived. There can be no quarrel with any honest effort to sell war savings stamps by any device. But if the practice is resurrected to sell war savings stamps it will speedily be applied to private avarice. Indeed, some few chain letters of the latter type have already appeared in Edmonton.

It is unkind to unload a parcel of these silly epistles into the hands of mothers who are anxiously awaiting letters from overseas. It is cruel to allow them to be the recipients of threats of misfortune if they "break the chain."

As chain letters are illegal, the full force of the law should be invoked to keep this chain letter nonsense dead.

After the Show!

In Montreal two boys told the police they saw a picture entitled "Calling Doctor Death" and then went out and burglarized a house and shot a detective. The sequence of events does not prove that the picture inspired the crime, but it suggests as much. There have been some similar occurrences of late in other parts of the continent. The indication is a need of greater caution on the part of censors. It is not enough that a picture does not incite grown people to violence and lawlessness. It must also be free of incidents which immature minds are liable to misconstrue as encouraging these things.

It is the understanding of the child, not of the adult, which must be the gauge as to the fitness, or even the harmlessness of pictures shown to audiences of all ages. To apply that standard is far more difficult for a censor than to simply cut out scenes which grown-ups would recognize as bad in their tendencies. But, difficult or not, it will have to be done in the interests of public morals and safety. The film is a wonderful instructor, but its teaching is likely to be misunderstood by young people when the theme and treatment of the subject are pitched to adult understanding.

Censors are a much-abused class of public servants. They are none the less men and women who do render service of high importance. In the occurrences cited above there is at least a suggestion of things which can be and often are prevented by an intelligent discharge of their duties. In a general way the "safety" of a picture can be judged by asking what those who see it are likely to think about, and perhaps do, afterward.

Tojo Hedges

The raid of Japanese forces into Manipur is apparently planned to produce political reactions, rather than to gain military results. That is to be inferred from the circumstances. It is confirmed by Premier Tojo's treatment of the subject.

Tojo long ago gave up hopes of launching a big scale invasion of India, for no one knows better than he that the initiative is that theatre has passed to the Allies. Militarily the drive can hardly be more than a desperate attempt to set up an aggressive defence and halt the threatened Allied offensive against the Japanese forces in Burma.

But that is not the view, naturally, which Tojo presents to his people. He invites them to think the move is a major operation; obviously because if morale is to be maintained they must be given something to divert their attention from the melancholy plight that has befallen the marooned Japanese garrisons in the southern and central islands and the amazing attrition of Nippon's air force, naval forces and merchant marine.

But the premier was careful to not label the Manipur raid a Japanese enterprise. He pictured it as an undertaking of a so-called "Indian national army", with headquarters in Burma, to which Japanese forces were giving assistance. One advantage of this is that the Japanese propadanda agents can appeal to the Ghandists in India to revolt in aid of their countrymen who are fighting to gain independence. It has the further advantage that when the invaders meet with disaster Tojo can tell his downhearted people the blow fell upon Indian rebels and not upon the forces of Imperial Japan.

This careful hedging discloses a healthy suspicion in the Tojo mind that the raid will not get far, and that the most it can hope to accomplish is the stirring of unrest among the Indian pacifists. He is not betting on the military results, while hoping that hampering political reactions may be started in India.

An escaped Chinese prisoner reports that in Malaya rubber and tin are lying in stock piles because the Japanese have not enough ships to carry them away. The situation of the natives who produce rubber and work in the tin mines can be surmised. When products lie useless the producers know hard times. Malayan opinon of the "co-prosperity" propaganda must have slumped badly.

Some observers in Washington are said to think Anglo-American precautions against Eire being used as a base for Nazi and Japanese spies will be modified by memories of the Casement rebellion. That should not be; and probably won't be. The events of Irish history have nothing to do with the case. The duty of the Allies is to protect the lives of their fighting men by plugging every possible Eire leak through which information can reach Berlin and Tokyo. Churchill and Roosevent are not likely to play traitors to our soldiers in order to appease Nazi sympathizers, or sentimentalists who harbor grudges on account of Sir Roger Casement. The "observers" in question must belong to one class or the other.

Has Canada the Key to the Palestine Problem?

Both Jews and Arabs Can Live Peaceably Side by Side

By THE OBSERVER,
In the Toronto Daily Star

The famous Balfour Declaration on which the remarkable Jewish transformation of Palestine has been carried on was contained in a letter written by Arthur James Balfour, then foreign minister of Lloyd George's cabinet, and addressed to Lord Rothschild on February 2, 1917. No fault can be found with the gratitude and energy which it called out from the Jews of the world.

The Arab population of Palestine and adjoining countries was, however, somewhat unnaturally dissatisfied with the arrangements, and after some attempts which contented neither Arabs nor Jews, the government of Neville Chamberlain prepared what is known as the White Paper of May 17, 1939. It was accepted by the commons only after the government, during the tense weeks of that late date, declared that refusal to accept it would be followed by resignation. While in the present state of unpreparedness would have seemed to make disaster inevitable. The paper was formally disapproved by the permanent mandate commission of the League of Nations.

It was never submitted for approval to the council of the league. Nevertheless it was put into effect. Under its provisions this White Paper the land restrictions of February 29, 1940, were issued; its immigration provisions was put into effect as of March, 1939, and all Jewish immigration was prohibited after March 31, 1944, unless Arab consent was obtained.

This means that this dream of a national home, so deeply desired by this wandering and homeless people, so courageously undertaken, so energetically and successfully sustained, will be doomed to failure.

This paper cannot be considered a mere interpretation of the Balfour Declaration. It means the complete wrecking of it. In the quarter of a century the Jews of Palestine have become a population of nearly half a million. They have built from the ground up a city of 150,000; they have turned arid land into orchards and garden; success and peace—all that Haria marshes, substituted orange groves and forest; they have dammed rivers and created cheap electricity. They can do nothing but abandon all that their hard labor and expenditure of hundreds of millions have created or they must fight. Their only hope of permanent success and peace—all that they have accomplished and the greater things that are possible to be—are placed to the mercy of a people who have been content to live for a thousand years in deserts and swamps and who have neither the right nor the capacity to maintain these works. Loyal as they have been to England, in spite of much neglect and much sympathy with the Arabs, the Jews declare with deep sadness but clearness they will fight.

Let us consider what may follow. They are very imperfectly equipped, for the Arabs (i.e. those hostile) have many are quite content with the present situation) secure arms from the police or patrols that they manage to trap and kill. A great responsibility will rest on the British government. Will it be her duty to help the Arabs, whose opposition to her arrangements has made all the trouble, and destroy those others who have done nothing and asked nothing but what she had granted to them?

Why should this White Paper have been conceived? What service had the Arabs rendered Britain that they merited this complete change of policy? Through all these late difficult years no Arabs except those who welcomed the coming of the Jews have done anything but seek the help and yield to the incitements of Hitler and Mussolini. Why run into such foolish entanglements to gratify the prejudices of those who have no love for Britain? And just when these friends of the Arabs can render them scant service? Just when Hitler and Mussolini have almost reached the end of their tether?

The White Paper itself declares that the objective of those who drew it up was "the establishment within ten years of an independent Palestine state in such treaty arrangements with the United Kingdom as will provide satisfactorily for the commercial and strategic requirements of both countries in the future."

Why not have let things settle a little longer? Find out whether the Arabs were so enormously happy when Hitler and Mussolini were too busy with their own troubles to be any longer trying to make trouble for Britain a little corner? After all, the Arabs have been well helped by Britain. T. E. Lawrence himself "put on record" my conviction that England is out of the Arab affair with clean hands."

Whatever the promises and by whomsoever made to Arabs as to Jews, it seems strange to waste any much indignation over the alleged injustice to the Arabs, when one considers that out of a great territory in West Asia which had been won from the Turk mainly by British, territory as large as all Europe without Russia, was given to form six Arab kingdoms; while to the Jews is given only a little patch about the size of Wales.

It is quite believable that there would have been no trouble over the Jewish settlement if it had been stirred up by the two arch troublers of our times.

But, as it seems to me, it would not have been just or proper to overlook the claims of the Arabs, and I think that the legitimate claims of both may yet be satisfied.

Canada seems to me to hold the key of the problem. The situation in French Canada after the conquest was strikingly similar to that in West Asia after World War I. The French may well be wished to retain control of New France from the Atlantic to the Rockies and to the mouth of the Mississippi. What they received was a still vaster country, but to be occupied by colonists with their religion undisturbed and the civil law to which they were accustomed and the dear and beautiful tongue of France. Consequently they accepted the companionship of a strange people. This union of nationalities has brought its difficulties and has led man to trife. In the rebellion French and English together fought French and English together.

Let the present British government make no change now, but trust to time and good will. A small commission of French and English will be glad to help the British government to build a nation of two languages and two religions with a constitution that will endure as long as those of the golden age of Islam, when in Spain and in Egypt, Jew and Arab lived together in goodwill and peace.

Peace

ST. THOMAS TIMES-JOURNAL

Add to the horrors of war a prospective horror of peace.

An American manufacturer announces that the "walkie-talkie" telephone which soldiers are carrying in the jungle and on other fronts will become a commonplace of civilian life in the days of peace. The "walkie-talkie" is a portable radio telephone by which men communicate with each other, or with their bases. They carry a set slung over their shoulders.

This is a direful outlook. Friend wife will be sure to see to it that John has his radio-telephone when he leaves to go to work in the morning, and she is liable to phone him during the day to remind him to be sure to drop in at the grocer's and bring home a pound of butter and a bag of flour and because she will want them for the morning. And what will it be like if a radio-phone message that he is detained at the office and she tunes-in there about midnight to ask when he is coming home and gets no answer, then, having a hunch, she calls him at the club and finds he is in a poker game with the gang?

KITCHENER RECORD

California reports the case of a woman who, having a good maid with whom to leave her children, volunteered to act as a child-care centre. She felt free to devote considerable time to club and social life because of the maid, and in the emergency she felt it only right to do her bit.

In the child-care centre she had trouble with one obstreperous youngster and finally exclaimed:

"If I knew what I'm going to tell her she could teach you how to behave."

"She ought to know her," retorted the child. "She's your maid."

Royal Example

Editor, Bulletin: In a current number of one of our Canadian magazines is a very fine article about the Princess Elizabeth which it would certainly pay some modern parents of "teen-aged kids to read—and remember. It is emphsized that the 18-year-old princess has been trained to consider others and that she is naturally the unselfish type anyway.

The training by a wise mother was begun long before there appeared any possibility of the girl being heir to the throne. Perhaps if we had a little more of this sort of instruction of our girls and boys we would see less juvenile delinquency.

Our modern youngsters, instead of being considerate of others, are cheeky and greedy and pushing, as they evidently have become through parental example.

Servicewomen's Pay

Editor, Bulletin: The Canadian Legion and all other ex-servicemen's organizations have for their main object participation. The influence of these groups will, when the war is over, mean the difference between evolution and revolution in Canada.

Our men and women in our forces have 20th century ideals and ambitions. The Canadian Legion passed a motion favoring equality of pay for women. A copy of this resolution was sent to Mr. MacKinnon (who was disqualified during the last war) and to Mrs. Casselman, husband served and was therefore our comrade. This man and woman have always been our friends of the ex-servicemen. Mrs. Casselman brought this matter to the attention of the board of the Edmonton Journal in an editorial commented on her action, speaking nicely of what she said but the joker in the deck, printed in italics, was: "equal pay for equal service." It was, in fact, quite a peculiar compliment in that paper's particular style.

Paragraph two of the editorial says, "Merely to equalize pay on the basis of rank would not be fair to men who are liable to front-line service and who, when released by ill health, may not exceed there in the normal course."

The paper says nothing about men called up and who refuse active duty and who receive full pay.

Women are in and have been in London and other places while the bombing was on.

This hour of crisis is no time to be quibbling over a few cents a day, but there is a principle, equality. If the women are an asset—and they surely are, for the article admits men are released for action by women filling their places—let us do our part as those women are and we need not have the fear of slavery and Nazism.

Canadian Distinctions

Editor, Bulletin: A correspondent expresses surprise "that there has not been a wider outcry of indignation in Canada" against the U.S. decision to distinguish between native born Canadians and other Canadians in the matter of admission without passports.

The truth is that there has been a very wide outcry of indignation and it is thoroughly unjustified. The distinction was first established originally by the United States; it was established by Canada, and is because of the Canadian distinction that the United States has felt obliged to make a corresponding distinction.

A native born Canadian is the only kind of Canadian about whom there is absolute certainty that he will not be refused re-admission to Canada after going abroad. Any other kind of citizen, including a British subject who has become a citizen merely by residence, can be barred from re-entry to Canada and on occasion has been. Evidence of Canadian birth is the only thing which can assure the U.S. authorities that if they should want to push the individual in question out of their territory they will be permitted to push him back into Canada without resistance on Canada's part.

More Houses

Editor, Bulletin: Some reasons why Edmonton should build houses for her citizens, and the public.

In 1940 Edmonton reported a population of 91,720, in 1943 it was 119,000, an increase of 27,727 in three years, over 9,000 a year.

At six persons to a family it would take over 1,500 houses to take care of the increase. (There is no occasion for me to give details. The press does that.)

The net profit from the five utilities after charges of depreciation, operation expenses, interest and redemption on debt was $1,090,338. The operations of the five utilities departments for the year resulted in the transfer to the general revenue account of a net surplus of $459,240, besides paying taxes amounting to $631,098, and in addition placing $850,670 to reserve account for renewals and extension, March 11, 1943.

Revenue from Edmonton's five utilities after deducting depreciation, operating expenses, interest and redemption on debt was $1,-518,450 resulted surplus of $443,-813, taxes $674,617 in 1942 and 1943, Edmonton paid in taxes $1,305,715 and a surplus of $903,000.

The burgesses contributed $301,-000 and the non-property owners $602,000.

I appeal to the council to set aside this $602,000 that was contributed by the non-property owners, and request the council to approach the federal government to loan Edmonton $800,000 for the definite purpose of building houses for the returned soldiers and families on a term of 20 years at 2 per cent. interest and a permit free to all returned soldiers to cut 10,000 feet of lumber if they desired to build a house, further a lot in any town, city or village in Alberta. The cost to build these houses is now. Remember if Canada did not send her soldiers overseas by the thousands, even into the millions, to fight to make Canada a safe place to live in, people would have to appeal to the Germans or Japs for the freedom of private enterprise.

The people have the power to build these houses. They have the material, no lack of money and there is great need. There is no scarcity of labor of all kinds and approximately all the money that is spent will go for essentials of life. They can do nothing but abandon all that their hard labor and expenditure of hundreds of millions have created or they must fight. Their only hope of permanent success and peace—all that they have accomplished and the greater things that are possible to be—are placed to the mercy of a people who have been content to live for a thousand years in deserts and swamps and who have neither the right nor the capacity to maintain these works. Loyal as they have been to England, in spite of much neglect and much sympathy with the Arabs, the Jews declare with deep sadness but clearness they will fight.

Let us consider what may follow. They are very imperfectly equipped, for the Arabs (i.e. those hostile) have many are quite content with the present situation) secure arms from the police or patrols that they manage to trap and kill. A great responsibility will rest on the British government. Will it be her duty to help the Arabs, whose opposition to her arrangements has made all the trouble, and destroy those others who have done nothing and asked nothing but what she had granted to them?

Why should this White Paper have been conceived? What service had the Arabs rendered Britain that they merited this complete change of policy? Through all these late difficult years no Arabs except those who welcomed the coming of the Jews have done anything but seek the help and yield to the incitements of Hitler and Mussolini. Why run into such foolish entanglements to gratify the prejudices of those who have no love for Britain? And just when these friends of the Arabs can render them scant service? Just when Hitler and Mussolini have almost reached the end of their tether?

The White Paper itself declares that the objective of those who drew it up was "the establishment within ten years of an independent Palestine state in such treaty arrangements with the United Kingdom as will provide satisfactorily for the commercial and strategic requirements of both countries in the future."

Why not have let things settle a little longer? Find out whether the Arabs were so enormously happy when Hitler and Mussolini were too busy with their own troubles to be any longer trying to make trouble for Britain a little corner? After all, the Arabs have been well helped by Britain. T. E. Lawrence himself "put on record" my conviction that England is out of the Arab affair with clean hands."

Whatever the promises and by whomsoever made to Arabs as to Jews, it seems strange to waste any much indignation over the alleged injustice to the Arabs, when one considers that out of a great territory in West Asia which had been won from the Turk mainly by British, territory as large as all Europe without Russia, was given to form six Arab kingdoms; while to the Jews is given only a little patch about the size of Wales.

It is quite believable that there would have been no trouble over the Jewish settlement if it had been stirred up by the two arch troublers of our times.

But, as it seems to me, it would not have been just or proper to overlook the claims of the Arabs, and I think that the legitimate claims of both may yet be satisfied.

Canada seems to me to hold the key of the problem. The situation in French Canada after the conquest was strikingly similar to that in West Asia after World War I. The French may well be wished to retain control of New France from the Atlantic to the Rockies and to the mouth of the Mississippi. What they received was a still vaster country, but to be occupied by colonists with their religion undisturbed and the civil law to which they were accustomed and the dear and beautiful tongue of France. Consequently they accepted the companionship of a strange people. This union of nationalities has brought its difficulties and has led man to trife. In the rebellion French and English together fought French and English together.

Let the present British government make no change now, but trust to time and good will. A small commission of French and English will be glad to help the British government to build a nation of two languages and two religions with a constitution that will endure as long as those of the golden age of Islam, when in Spain and in Egypt, Jew and Arab lived together in goodwill and peace.

Bombing Rome

Editor, Bulletin: We have read recently of a number of Catholic bishops complaining and condemning the bombing of the City of Rome. Why should Rome escape bombing any more than other cities and now we hear of prayers and petitions. We never heard of prayers when Italy was bombing Ethiopia and Italian planes along with German planes bombing London. Let those in the Vatican get out and give the Allies liberty of action and bring the war nearer to an end and let the gospel of the grace of God be preached freely.

Economic System

Editor Bulletin: We pat ourselves on the back and boast that our democracy is second to none.—fact is, we feel ours is just a wee bit better than that of other countries. When making a comparison, an observant individual would not have any difficulty in detecting that we always have our good points and those that are bad of other nations, when making a comparison. As long as we continue to do so we will always and remain beneath that of the countries we use in comparison.

Due to this "Self-Glorification" we assist the powers that be to bring about conditions which would not be tolerated by a fair, wide awake people. If there was a sane economic system operating in Canada, the closing of air schools would be welcomed as a great epoch in the progress of the war, but, such is not the case, hence, when schools are closed, it means that less money will circulate in said centres, and, the people near such points will, in all probability experience a decrease in income, which, in turn means a lower standard of living for them.

I do not think that a responsible individual will dispute such a statement, and my sympathy goes out to the common people who's income is lessened thereby,—however, my sympathy is as nothing compared to the sadness I feel that, apparently intelligent individuals, will act so utterly dense as to protest the closing of schools,—when, they should most vigorously and incessantly, fight against our economic system.

Our system is unjust, because it propagates (and many fall for it) that money itself is a thing of value. To the person who thinks such is not the case, I will ask "Why is interest asked and paid for the use of money, i.e., figures in a ledger—while a farmer, so often, must produce below cost?" What makes it possible for money to be lent, but that were it not for the production of goods and services, there would be no money to be lent.

I respectfully and earnestly ask all those who protest the closing of these schools, to attack the cause, and not the shadow in their protest. A sane economic system places goods above money,—goods and services would be fully and wisely utilized, money would be issued to cause the exchange of desirable and available goods and services, the cost would be in energy units,—no interest would be charged. Under such a system, closing of air schools would be welcomed as a desirable, in place of, a fearsome step, for the dominating thought would be, that Victory was nearer at hand, also, it would be the first and essential approach to preventing wars in years to come.

Votes for Boys

Editor, Bulletin: Why shouldn't boys of eighteen years have a vote? They young men are being drafted into the armed forces at this early age without even an opportunity to express their approval or disapproval of such an action.

They are being sent all over the world to fight for their beloved country, yet they can't put the men into parliament whom they wish to lead Canada in the great struggle.

Some people will no doubt say that they are too young, their minds still too immature, to take such a responsibility. However, since these younger members of our armed forces have the courage and mentality to make the best soldiers in the world, they certainly have as much if not more common sense than a great number of present voters.

When the war is over and these nineteen- and twenty-year-old soldiers, sailors and airmen return home to find exactly what they would have a vote as to what government will run post-war Canada.

Civilians Will Get More Goods

Many Jobs of Production For War Are Nearing Completion

By B. T. RICHARDSON

OTTAWA.—The text of Mr. Howe's reviews of war production each year since the department of munitions and supply was created four years ago, has been that there must be no slackening of output of needed armaments. That was still his text in 1944, but detail after detail in the survey that he unfolded in parliament confirmed the fact that no further general expansion in Canadian war production is to be planned. Many of the jobs of war production are nearing completion.

Some of the jobs, of course, will go on steadily until the last gun is fired. Last year, when Mr. Howe gave his report in the year that finds United we still greater production were aircraft and cargo ships. This year, as his lengthy statement shows, main item to be still expanded is aircraft. In all other branches of war production, in his handling of the problem, the task of 1944 is to hold the level of output already attained, or to begin to taper off.

This marks a new phase of the war on the home front. It is the first direct warning that the problem of re-conversion is just around the corner. No one will be foolish enough to jump to the conclusion that it means that the war is over. The weapons have been produced and the decisive campaign may be just ahead, though even this obviously cannot be said of the war against Japan. Yet on the home front in Canada, the industrial revolution in which Canadian productive capacity has been transformed, is ended.

Mr. Howe's review needs to be studied with the recent report of the Wartime Prices and Trade board to show the extent to which civilian supply is moving out of the stage of shortages and into a new stage in which civilian goods will become increasingly available. "In the supply picture," said the report, "the beginning of the end of shortages is starting to emerge, although not somewhat slowly."

In the last half of 1943, the metal supply situation eased markedly, so that limited resumption of production has been started in durable goods. Production is being started in electric irons and washing machines. Increases in production have been authorized in wire cloth, barbed wire, razor blades and hair pins. One of the most important changes in 1943 was the increase now in production of farm machinery, which is now back to 77 per cent of the 1939-41 output. Haying machinery and milking equipment is coming back, and the range of hand-operated implements, pumps and other items are being provided on a scale not permissible in 1942.

These increases relate directly to the urgent need of dairy and livestock production. But the householder is beginning to receive more consideration than he or she did when war needs took precedence. Recent orders have been made to permit increased production of hair pins, bob pins, and corset steel. Metal is coming back into use in furniture and bedding equipment.

While the Wartime Prices and Trade Board is examining all restrictions on civilian supply, in order to control in an orderly fashion the return of civilian production, it is exercising stringent control over the market in used goods.

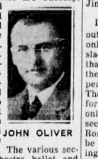

In many parts of Canada, the small beginnings of a housing boom are reported. Changes in the restrictions on building are expected to be made shortly, allowing a substantial increase in construction of new houses. How estimated that a backlog of $300,-000,000 in construction projects existed in Canada on Feb. 1, 1944. As the controls of construction are eased, now that defence building is virtually completed, the private dwelling will take first place. So far, said Mr. Howe, only in exceptional instances would construction of public buildings, churches, places of amusement and similar projects be authorized.

For many months yet, the picture presented in civilian supplies will remain uneven. But as the requirements for war are filled, the balance will shift in favor of the civilian consumer. The change is already creating many of the problems that the people of Canada have begun to think of as post-war problems.

Major and Miner Notes

By John Oliver

PREPARATIONS for the Edmonton Civic Opera Society production of Rudolf Friml's musical play Katinka are well advanced, according to information seeping through to this column from agents who have been observers at rehearsals. The dates are Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, April 18, 19 and 20, and the place is the Strand theatre. Mrs. James B. Carmichael, general musical director of the society, has welded the company into a closely-knit unit and home-stretch rehearsals will commence in the immediate future. The various sections, chorus, orchestra, ballet, and principals have held separate rehearsals, but now the ensemble is performing the show in its entirety, and the results, according to agents, are generally satisfactory. From all reports, the chorus is equal to the best in the history of the organization, and those in charge expect that when the merits of the production are assessed, it will be recorded for posterity that Katinka was one of the outstanding ventures in light opera in this city.

JOHN OLIVER

Katinka will be the third Rudolf Friml work added to the repertoire of the society. The first to be played was The Vagabond King, followed last fall by The Firefly. Now comes Katinka. It may be noted that The Firefly was Friml's first excursion into the realm of light opera, although, prior to that he had enjoyed a wide reputation, not only as a brilliant pianist, but as a composer of many works in various forms. It does not fall to the lot of every composer to write a smash hit with enduring melodies on his first operatic venture. But Friml managed it, and to this day he has not surpassed his first in quality.

After The Firefly, his next work was High Jinks, which won conspicuous success in New York, and then, transferred to the London stage, it was one of the brightest entertainments during the Great War of 1914-1918, playing at the Adelphi Theatre, on the Strand, for many months. In chronological order, Katinka succeeded High Jinks.

During the Great War, Friml's output was enormous and it was only natural that there must be a slackening of melody of the type that featured his early work. By the time the war ended he appeared to have completed an era. There were no more smash hits, and for a few years, he was heard from only sporadically. Then, he got his second wind. In 1924 he composed Rose Marie, which turned out to be his most widespread success, being produced in the United States, Great Britain, on the continent, and in fact all over the world. It was followed by The Vagabond King, The Three Musketeers, White Eagle and others which proved conclusively that his rich vein of melody was by no means exhausted.

In this succession of productions there are certain musical trends, pace setting trends which have been widely followed. For instance, The Firefly, if you recall, came out before the word jazz had found its way into our bright lexicon. Ragtime was the vogue, and the waltz and two-step held sceptred sway. The hesitation waltz was creeping into favor, and Friml both anticipated and clinched this favor by writing the Sympathy song.

In the third bar of the chorus of Sympathy, he used a slurred phrase of two notes, followed by a pause, and that's where the hesitation came in, and it was that piece that "put over" the hesitation waltz and made it a ballroom favorite.

In the song Something Seems Tingle-Ingleing from High Jinks, Friml forecast the arrival and popularity of the fox-trot. This song marked a distinct departure from the two-step and popular ragtime of the day. Here were tingling phrases and the public went "high jinks" over them. There is a wide variety of rhythmic variation in his music, and his melody always is apparent. He caught the public fancy with his rhythmic surprises and held it with his melody. Very few popular marches have been written in minor keys. His Song of the Vagabonds from The Vagabond King is one of the exceptions. In addition to a melody, it abounds in vigorous, ingratiating rhythm. In Katinka there is some of his finest music, gorgeous melody, richly harmonized and expertly orchestrated.

From England comes word of the death of a composer who will be missed by music-lovers the world over namely, Harold Fraser-Simson. He was 65 years old and died at his home in Croy, near Inverness, as a result of a fall downstairs. He was educated at Charterhouse school and under private teachers. For a time he worked in a bank, but music occupied most of his attention. In 1911 his first light opera, Bonita, was produced in London, and later in New York. His greatest success was The Maid of the Mountains, produced at Daly's theatre, London, in 1917. It was a tremendous success; and ran for 1,300 performances, sharing with Chu Chin Chow and The Merry Widow the all-time long-run record for London.

Thousands of Canadian soldiers journeyed to Daly's to hear Jose Collins, Thorpe Bates and other stars sing such lovely songs as Love Will Find a Way, A Bachelor Gay, A Paradise for Two, Farewell, and others. Incidentally, it was an English company, playing The Maid of the Mountains, that opened the Empire theatre here on Dec. 23, 1920. In addition to composing many stage works Fraser-Simson won fame by his settings of verses from A. A. Milne's When We were Twenty-One, and from Alice in Wonderland.

McCoy Health Service

With the coming of colder weather there is usually an increase in the number of cases of earache, a trouble which may cause considerable distress in both children and adults.

My message to you on this subject is: At the first sign of earache, start proper treatment at once. The discomfort which begins as simple earache may develop into a discharging ear, or may bring about mastoiditis, or may lead to deafness. Any earache no matter how trifling it may seem, needs attention.

Most earaches come from the middle ear, which is a cavity located between the outer and inner ear. The middle ear is connected with the back of the nose by a narrow tube called the Eustachian tube. An infection of the nose and throat, such as that seen in the acute cold, may easily extend into the ear by way of this tube.

Trouble in the middle ear is accompanied by swelling of the mucous membrane which lines the cavity and by an increased secretion of mucus. The swelling may block the tube, preventing proper drainage and having the result of causing mucus to accumulate within the cavity. In some cases, the mucus is mixed with pus.

The patient usually complains of a sense of fullness within the affected ear; and in addition may complain of either a dull, nagging ache, or a sharper pain.

On attempting to swallow, a swift stab of pain may result. If the patient is a child, he becomes restless and irritable. In the case of the very young child, the patient may be unable to tell the mother what is wrong, but if she will observe closely she will find a clue to the trouble by watching to see if the child objects to resting the face on the affected side on the pillow while lying down. Or, the toddler may show the mother that the ear hurts by repeatedly putting one hand to the ear.

The inflammatory process may work backward until it reaches the mastoid process, behind the ear, causing mastoiditis, which is a serious disorder requiring professional attention. Or, the eardrum may rupture, producing a discharging ear. Usually the discharge is thick and purulent and has an unpleasant odor. If neglected, eventually deafness may result.

When an earache develops, the safest plan is to stop all food for a day or two as this will assist the ear in emptying itself of catarrhal mucus which has collected. If everyone would do this at the start of an earache there would be fewer cases of mastoiditis. The fast from food will tend to bring relief as the catarrhal inflammation is reduced under the fasting treatment. Afterward, the patient should stay on a non-starchy diet for a short time, using plenty of cooked and raw vegetables with an egg a day and a moderate amount of meat. Recovery is usually more rapid if starches, sugars and milk are omitted.

Temporary relief from the ache itself is generally best secured through the application of heat.

It is always a question whether an earache should be treated at home, or whether a doctor should be called. I believe that the safest plan is to seek professional aid, regardless of whether the earache is slight or severe. However, I realize that some of my readers live a great distance from a doctor and it might not be possible to get a doctor in a hurry. In such cases, the best plan is to go ahead and try using heat and the fast, together with daily enemas until the doctor can get there.

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large stamped, self addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Building, 1151 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

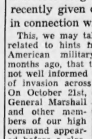

Air Power

What Invasion Involves

By Maj. A. P. de Seversky

Dispatches from the other side of the Atlantic disclose that Russian military men have been studying the techniques and weapons of amphibious warfare as developed by the Allies. According to reports, Stalin's generals and admirals were recently given demonstrations of our tactics and equipment in connection with invasion preparations.

This, we may take it, is not unrelated to hints from the highest American military levels, some months ago, that the Russians are not well informed on the problems of invasion across water barriers. On October 21st, General Marshall and other members of our high command appeared before a closed Congressional meeting. Referring to unnamed representatives, a United Press correspondent was able to write:

de Seversky

"They said he (Marshall) indicated that the Russians may have underestimated the great difficulties and hazards of amphibious operations, since they had little experience in them, while the Allies have been learning some hard lessons in Africa, Sicily, Italy and the Pacific."

Whether or not General Marshall was accurately quoted at the time, it is a fact that Russian operations to date, though gigantic in scale and varied in content, have all been conducted on a continuous land area. It has been essentially a contest on land and for land. The Russian experience has been useless to us so far as our specific problems of invasion across water are concerned.

Are we now trying to "educate" the Russians as to the special difficulties of large-scale invasion, in order to help them understand why such invasion has not yet been undertaken? Or are the Russians facing the possibility of amphibious action in their own theatre of war and hence eager to obtain "pointers" and perhaps equipment as well? Probably both suppositions are true.

VIRTUALLY CUT OFF

With the fall of Kherson, the German-held peninsula of Crimea has been virtually cut off. Crimea is important strategically for the control of the Black Sea, and the Russians have to decide how to take it over—unless of course, the Germans decide that it's untenable and withdraw. The approach by land is through Perekop, an isthmus so narrow that militarily speaking Crimea may be considered as an island.

Although this "island" has been within close range for a long period, ever since the Germans lost Novorossisk, the Russians have not ventured to take it by amphibious methods. At any rate, if they did make any such attempts they must have failed. But since then Allied successes in amphibious strategy, particularly American victories in offences against a series of Pacific islands, have shown possibilities which the Russians may be tempted to put into effect.

CONCRETE ILLUSTRATION

It will be interesting to observe whether they will now, for the first time since the Russo-German war started, try amphibious procedures against Crimea. If they do, they will have a concrete illustration, on a small scale, of what our expected invasion of the continuet involves on a vastly larger scale. Since Crimea is in effect an island, successful land-sea-air invasion has every chance of being successful.

Whether or not Soviet military leaders have tended to underrate the task or amphibious invasion of a great continent, certainly civilians who for the past two years clamored for a premature "second front" have shown little appreciation of what that involved. They were, to put it mildly, ungenerous in insisting on a strategy which the Anglo-American military leadership considered hopeless at the time.

Even today, those who are impatient for the start of invasion, do not grasp that in the strategic sense it has already begun. The type of air offensive now being pressed against the German, aiming in the first place at the elimination of the enemy's air power, is specifically in preparation for the invasion. If this air strategy is successful to the point where we have freedom of navigation over Germany, the country will lie helplessly exposed to our air power. Under those circumstances, in the view of airmen, the enemy may well recognize the futility of further resistence; and we may see a capitulation even before our troops step on the soil of western Europe.

HARMFUL REPERCUSSIONS

Those who do not grasp the problems of invasion across water barriers would be better advised to cease demanding immediate action. There is less danger that our military leadership will decide to invade too late than there is that it may do so too soon. It should be more widely recognized that an invasion which is unsuccessful, or which merely got bogged down on the pattern of the Italian operation, might have seriously harmful repercussions not only in military terms but in terms of morale and political relationships. Throughout military history, offensives undertaken under political pressures, before conditions were ripe, have seldom succeeded.

The circumstance that the Russians have become interested in the tactics of amphibious warfare, and that they may face some amphibious tasks themselves, should help to clarify the picture.

Soldiers, Nurses Home From Front

By The Canadian Press

A contingent of Canadian servicemen has arrived back in Canada from the fighting and training sectors overseas, accompanied by a group of Canadian nurses back from service in South Africa hospitals.

The small group of fighting men consisted almost exclusively of soldiers, some slightly wounded, others sent back to the Dominion because of lower category, or age regulations, or to act as instructors or take over other posts in the army.

The nurses had been members of the South African military nursing service for two years or more. Most of them are hoping to join the Canadian army as nurses. They include Emily Mayhew, Edmonton.

N.V.R., who received "the Order of the Patriotic War, second class"; Sub. Lieut. C. R. A. Seniuk, R.C. N.V.R., "Order of the Patriotic War first class" and Flt. Sgt. W. L. Residents Escape Rooms Above Cafe As Building Burns

SHAUNAVON, Sask., March 25.— (CP)—A dozen residents of the rooms above the Royal Cafe here escaped when fire destroyed the cafe and Branstedt's pool hall early yesterday. Nick Kovalski, one of the roomers, discovered the fire about 2 a.m. and roused the other roomers. Two waitresses, Laura and Eileen Stewart, carried the two Chinese children to safety, but lost their personal belongings and money.

Damage to the buildings, two of the oldest in Shaunavon's business section, was estimated at $12,000.

M.P. Tells House Place For Judges Is on the Bench

OTTAWA, March 25. — (CP) — Judges should stay on the bench and not be used as commissioners, chairmen, boards or diplomats, Alfred Bence (P.C.-Saskatoon) said last night at the House of Commons debate on a government proposal to add a judge to the exchequer court. The bill received second reading.

"If they are going to be judges, let them be judges," said Mr. Bence. "If they are going to be chairmen of boards or high commissioners, let them be that."

A Saskatchewan judge (Hon. T. C. Davis) was now high commissioner to Australia, A man should not be permitted to keep a judicial appointment "like an old carriage" while absent from his post for years. There were too many delays in filling vacancies on the bench.

TODAY'S MESSAGE

By REV. H. H. BINGHAM, D.D.
General Secretary-Treasurer The Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec.
Formerly Minister of First Baptist Church, Calgary.

Commando Christianity

THE Commando Corps are a new feature in the fighting forces of our brave armies now overseas. They are chosen apparently for their superb courage, daring and initiative in making raids in enemy territory, and for opening up the way to a larger offensive. They are men who know they must take the offensive against a well concealed and strongly enforced foe, but who "counting not their lives dear unto themselves," go forward in the conflict.

The word has come to signify all that is in Christianity. The leaders of the early Church might well be called the commandos of Christianity. They pushed forward with the message of the gospel and "who through faith subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained promises, stopped the mouths of lions . . . of whom the world was not worthy." One of the large free Church communions of Great Britain is adopting the word in connection with its challenge to the members of the varied congregations, and appoints a "new commando" evangelism in which teams of ministers literally go out to reach in arresting fashion the churchless people and those who have drifted from religion. It is an endeavor to bring back into the churches a rugged invasion religion.

Christianity on this continent has been suffering an attack of pernicious anaemia, and has lost a good deal of the ruggedness which characterized it a generation ago. We have developed in religious life a splendid supply of Pollyanna goodness with a fine smattering of ecclesiastical pagantry and pulpit perfumery. We have had amiable presentations of humanism, and some quite effective manoeuvrings in missions. We have allowed beauty and the aesthetic in worship to become external substitutes for the great spiritual realities of our faith until, as Dr. Shepherd Jones says: "We have inoculated the world with a mild form of Christianity." Something vastly more rugged and real is needed if our churches, our clergy and the people are to adequately face the forces of evil today, and successfully meet the challenge of the world of tomorrow. We need that expression of religion which will meet the needs which rise out of the titanic struggle of man to be man, and his quest for God. We must reveal a religion sufficiently dynamic that it will be a dominant force for triumphant personal living and brotherly sharing. World conditions are desperately calling for what we might well call a Commando Christianity.

Spiritual numbness and prevailing impotence do not settle down upon organized Christianity without a reason. There must be contributing factors in creating such a condition. If the people can help provide the answer, they claim that the clergy of our day are not coming to grips with life and reality as they ought in Sunde ministry. On the one hand they assert the preaching is too speculative and academic, while on the other it is asserted that the people are being fed on dry dogmatism and routine ritual, when they are really calling for "the Bread of Life." Many people are weary of discussing religious problems entirely from the intellectual point of view alone. A forum on prayer or a debate as to the Deity of Christ will not create the deep convictions or the driving power essential to the progress of Christianity.

The subtle and insidious enthronement of false gods in this age has had a weakening influence upon Christian life. New types of paganism have arisen, and old types have been revived, and so people are bowing down before glittering gods in the supposition that they will create the new heaven and the new earth. Human schemes for human betterment are being lifted high. We know that the Christian message has something definite and authoritative to say about race, national socialism, money, material resources and human freedom. It has something to say about God, man and all basic interests. We know too, that there can be no new earth without a fearless and a full proclamation and reception of the power and the principles of the gospel of Christ.

There is a call for a commando type of Christianity which looks to fresh spiritual experiences and which covers new areas, and that possesses a dauntless faith in the living God and in the forces of righteousness and truth. We need to keep aflame that rugged religion which believes dauntlessly in man's freedom. The Christian faith is rooted and grounded in the assurance that man must be free to strive, to rise, to grow, to lift and to love. Man can never abuse his freedom or abandon it without abolishing all that makes him man. A forsaken freedom is bound to lead to slavery. Such freedom was given them by the state or the church; it is the gift of God, and woe betide the state which robs the people of that gift.

Such a type of commandos does an intensive rather than an extensive work, thus leading the way for wider operations. Their task is to tackle individual objectives. This is a day for intensive service for God; a day when we must attack definite citadels of the enemy; a day when the individual must be reached; through him the group, and through the group the more extensive objectives. Christ Himself was the Divine Commando. He trained well His group and sent them forth with the faith, the valor and the passion, which His followers of today might well emulate.

The Rev. Stewart D. Trites will conduct regular Sunday services at McDonald Baptist church.

Rev. Wm. Simons will conduct regular services at Rupert Street Presbyterian Church.

Eire Ignores Facts

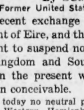

Strict Neutrality Is No Longer An Honest Course For Peace-Loving People

This is the sixteenth of a series of articles by Sumner Welles, former United States Under Secretary of State, which appear exclusively each week in The Edmonton Bulletin.—EDITOR.

By SUMNER WELLES
Former United States Under Secretary of State

The recent exchange between our government and the government of Eire, and the subsequent decision of the British government to suspend normal communications between the United Kingdom and Southern Ireland, raise the question whether in the present world traditional neutrality is any longer even conceivable.

There are today no neutral powers in the Western Hemisphere. There is none in the Far East. There is none in Africa. In the Near-East there is only Turkey. And in Europe there remain but Sweden, Switzerland, Spain, Portugal and Eire. Only these few small states are still out of the war which Germany and Japan have inflicted upon the rest of mankind.

Sumner Welles

Of the European neutrals Sweden and Switzerland, because of their geographical position, have been in great danger. They could not for long have defended themselves against a Nazi attack, nor could the United Nations render them much effective help. Their continued freedom depended upon their ability to walk a tight-rope. The overwhelming majorities of both peoples are wholeheartedly democratic. Their sympathies have steadfastly been with the cause of the United Nations. They have been subject to every form of threat from Hitler. They have nevertheless been able to block almost every attempt on the part of the Nazis to utilize them for their own ends.

VICORIES SWAY FRANCO

Portugal remains neutral only in name. It has finally remembered the terms of its ancient alliance with England.

Had it not been for the passionate opposition of the masses of the Spanish people themselves, Franco might well, in the first years of the war, have prostituted the interests of Spain to the Nazi regime which he so warmly admires. Today the mounting tide of the victories of the United Nations has permanently removed this danger. The recent adoption by the United States and Great Britain of a realistic policy in their dealings with Franco has also resulted in a great curtailment of the assistance which the Nazis can obtain from Spain.

Of the neutral states of Europe, Eire has been a favored minority of one. For it has been able both to have its cake and eat it.

The Irish people have suffered neither the hourly fear of Nazi attack nor the constant coercion of Berlin to which the other European neutrals have been subjected for four and a half dire years. The strong right arm of the British armed services, whether the Irish appreciate it or not, has saved them from these threats to their liberties.

Throughout these years the policy pursued by Downing Street in its relations with Eire has been wholly free from undue pressure, however much the stubborn refusal of the Irish government to help Great Britain or the United States in their war effort has handicapped the naval, air and military forces of the United Nations in their attempts to safeguard the British Isles, and to prosecute the war.

U.S. ATTITUDE PATIENT

The attitude displayed by President Roosevelt could have been neither more friendly nor more patient. He has time and again done his utmost to put the facts in their true light in his messages to Prime Minister de Valera. But to all of his messages the answers have been wholly unresponsive.

The use of naval or air bases in southern Ireland by the United States or Great Britain would have assisted many of our convoyed vessels from being sunk by German U-boats.

That may be regarded as a negative factor. On the other hand, can only be considered as a very positive factor, and one which gravely endangers the vital military interests of the United States and of Great Britain, is the persistent refusal of the Irish government to liquidate the Axis missions still functioning in Eire. The entire world has learned by experience that Axis diplomatic and consular establishments are nothing more than centres of espionage and subversive activities.

TOLD OF DANGER

Early in 1942 President Roosevelt impressed upon the Irish government the danger which these nests of Axis agents represented through the reports on naval or troop movements which they were able to send by clandestine radio or other means.

Eamon de Valera has never been noted for possessing an elastic mind. His reply dwelt solely upon the small number of Axis officials stationed in Eire, and the belief of the Irish authorities that the precautionary measures they were taking would make it impossible for Irish neutrality to be infringed.

Axis officials in Eire can carry on no legitimate business. There is no trade between their countries and Eire. There have been no political negotiations in progress. The German minister and the Japanese consul in Dublin, with their staffs, are solely occupied in spying upon our military preparations and in attempting to procure support for their own subversive plots from those who hate Great Britain.

QUARANTINE JUSTIFIED

At the moment when we are about to launch the greatest military undertaking of the war the lives of our men and the success of our operations are endangered by these activities.

Yet Prime Minister de Valera, and, in fairness it should be added, a great majority of the Irish people, because of their determination to stick to a rigid interpretation of a wholly unrealistic theory of neutrality, refuse to remove these grave dangers to the United Nations, to whose power Irish peace is due, and upon whose victory the future liberty and independence of Eire depend.

The measures to isolate Eire which have been taken, and which may still further be taken, are fully justified, hardly as these measures will bear upon the national economy of the people of Eire.

The utter lack of logic of our Irish friends was never more graphically demonstrated than by the recent editorial in a Dublin newspaper which said, "We are so fond of peace in Ireland we will fight like hell to keep it." The Irish are not going to be doing any fighting. It will be the men of the United Nations, whom they will not even lift a finger to help, who will be doing the fighting and the dying to make it possible for the Irish to enjoy the peace of which they are "so fond."

NOT HONEST COURSE

Adherence to the strict letter of neutrality is no longer an honest course for any freedom-loving people. Those who will not lend a hand in the supreme effort to make it possible for a real peace once more to exist have no right to expect to be heard by the victors when the war is won.

When Germany Is Defeated

By Emil Ludwig

course, miniature ones. Later, some of these united into about twenty countries. Bismarck united these under an hereditary president called "Kaiser". This union consisted of about twenty kingdoms, duchies and principalities, and three free cities that were republics.

When, in November, 1918, this new German empire lost its first war, the Kaiser ran away, followed immediately by twenty-two princes. Overnight, the German princedoms became republics, which united under a new president and were represented by a parliament, the Reichstag.

This German Republic consolidated the German tribes even more firmly, and Hitler's concentric government drew them still closer together—without, however, succeeding in making a perfect unity of the "Reich."

DISADVANTAGES

If the Allies should dismember this Germany after victory is won, they would re-awaken a passionately active national feeling. German thoughts of vengeance and war, so natural to their military character, would find a deep-rooted cause and magnificent expression. Furthermore, some great powers might begin to make treaties with certain parts of the disintegrated Germany, with the intention, for instance, of beginning a war against Russia.

These heavy disadvantages would not offset the advantage some people hope would be gained from dividing Germany into twenty parts. They believe this would bring about the weakening of Germany in a military and an economic sense.

Certainly German industry is not evenly distributed throughout the country. Some parts are more dependent on it than others. But its success in no way depends on a strong unity of the Reich. The Ruhr coal, the chemical industry of Frankfurt, the optical lenses of Zeiss in Jena would not lose their quality nor their market value with a decentralization of Germany.

In a military sense, Germany can be paralyzed by absolute disarmament and thorough suppression of any secret attempts at rearmament. But it is wrong to believe that a political dismemberment would prevent a repetition of military aggression. There would be another revenge war as soon as the old military caste had had time to prepare new soldiers.

PRUSSIA THE WAR-MAKER

The Germans are militant as a race, the Bavarians are known as rowdies, the Swabians and Saxons have won great battles, the Hanoverians have produced great sportsmen, but the spirit of attack, the will for conquest, the love of war, the adoration of uniforms, the education of soldiers and generals—in short, everything arrogantly military that has made Germans hated all over the world—comes from Prussia.

It was just three hundred years ago that the Great Elector founded the Prussian army, developed later by the father of Frederick the Great, the "Soldier King", then by Frederick himself, then by Blucher, Scharnhorst, Clausewitz, Moltke and Roon, and finally by the Prince and William II, into the most efficient army of the world.

BY GENERAL STAFF

The plans for three great wars of aggression were not made in Munich and Frankfurt, not in Cologne and Hamburg, not in Leipzig and Stuttgart. They were made by the Prussian General Staff in Berlin, for here was the home of the men of great military position, here were the sons and grandsons of those Junkers whose life for three hundred years had been the very soul of Prussia and even more the preparation of those wars. Their land and estates, their riches, power and honor all were derived from this art of war-making, developed and taught with all the efficiency at their disposal.

As power in Prussia was inherited by those in the upper classes, and obedience was inherited by those below, as all Prussian commoners tried to copy the reigning Junkers, the geographical meaning of the word "Prussian" gave way to a philosophical one. "Prussianism" came to mean a certain way of living that pervaded all classes of an expanding country.

Bismarck's talent, leaning on an army said to be invincible, at last made Prussia the undisputed master in Germany. When he, in 1871, made the King of Prussia a German emperor, he gave him the power to call to arms not only a Prussian army, but an army from all the other lands of Germany, which, owing to fear of the opposition of other princes. This army was trained according to Prussian traditions.

With a single signature, the King of Prussia, now the Kaiser, could mobilize troops from all parts of Germany—could call out the beginning of the last war, many more later on in the war. Hitler, the Austrian, and his helpers, most of whom were not Prussians, had to make their headquarters in Berlin, because without the Prussian General Staff he would never have been able to make war.

ISOLATION OF PRUSSIA

There is only one way to break this old militant power — by isolation of Prussia.

If, after Germany's defeat, the Allies set up two republics, "Prussia" and a "Deutscher Bund" (German Confederation), this division will not evoke the same spirit of revolt and resentment as would a tearing-up of Germany into twenty small parts. For Prussia was disliked by most of the other German states even before World War I. The Rhinelanders, who became Prussians in 1815 against their will, through all sorts of royal barterings, and the Hanoverians, Holsteiners, Hessians and Saxons, who were forcibly Prussified by Bismarck, liked to call themselves "Muss-Preussen", which means Prussians-by-force.

I remember that, about 1900, I saw a poster on the door of a Bavarian boarding house in Munich, which read: "Roomz to Let. Also to Prussians." This denotes popular antipathy.

After Bismarck formed the German empire, the Berliners, typically upstart, got more arrogant from year to year, so that their enormously growing city was accused from all parts of the Reich of having "water on the brain." As the Prussians had constituted less to German civilization than any other tribe, Berlin was tolerated but not liked as the capital of the Reich. Prominent scientists refused professorships in Berlin, preferring to stay, with less money, in their more cultured home-lands.

Now, after two world wars inflicted by Prussia — and both of them lost— the general dislike of Prussia among other Germans will turn into hate. The Allies should make use of this in the following way:

TWO REPUBLICS

The old historic Prussia, as it was up to 1800, is almost entirely located east of the Elbe and consists of the provinces Brandenburg, Pomerania, Silesia and East Prussia. The last should be given to Poland as an indemnity, together with Upper Silesia. Both lands have over three million inhabitants, eighty percent of them Protestant. The German claim that East Prussia is "purely Germanic" is not true, for the Prussians are half Wends, half Slavs, and have a little Germanic blood.

Also, it is as little true that the Germans, as a nation, would passionately resent the loss of these provinces as that they grieved over the separation of East Prussia by the Polish Corridor. The Eastern frontier (as the writer, born in those parts, knows very well) was never popular in the Reich and, in Western Germany, it was almost unknown. Only the Junkers, whose estates out there were hampered by the Corridor, made a fuss about a nation being "torn in two."

The three remaining Prussian provinces, Pomerania, Lower Silesia and Brandenburg, including Berlin, should be united in the new republic Prussia, with fourteen million inhabitants. All the states that were forcibly annexed by Prussia during the nineteenth century and that still hate Prussia should be placed in the German Confederation.

To prove the justification of this measure, Saxony, bordering on Prussia to the West, should be given a plebiscite to decide whether she wants to go with Prussia or the Confederation. The result would assuredly be against Prussia. The other neighbors, Thuringia, Mecklenburg, Brunswick, Anhalt, never belonged to Prussia and would naturally enter the Confederation.

The German Confederation, without Alsace Lorraine, Saarland and Austria, would have about fifty-three million inhabitants. Should Saxony decide for Prussia, it would have fifty million. Germany would then have a population slightly larger than that of Great Britain, and Prussia would have one equal to that of Czecho-Slovakia. The two republics would be tied together through postal and monetary unity, through their railway system, common tariffs, and free passage of persons between the two.

TWOFOLD ADVANTAGE

This division would have a twofold advantage. The Junkers would lose the power which would the Prussian General Staff.

The estates of the Junkers, the source of their privileges, should be divided among the peasants and tenants who labor on them, and part of the estates should be given over to Poland as war indemnities. This would end the reign of the Junkers, without the Allies having to adopt the policy of the Russian revolution and shooting them one and all—as they deserve.

Even if, in later times, a Prussian General Staff should again organize, it would be in a position to command only a small army of two million. A new king or Fuehrer wanting to go to war would not be able, like Hitler, to mobilize an army of fifteen million Germans by signing one order. With a small army, you cannot start a world war.

The military spirit of Prussia cannot be stifled by a cordon sanitaire. But the body of the German nation can be saved by amputating its poisoned limbs and by educating a reformed Germany to live in peace and co-operation with the peoples she once mistreated.

McKenney On Bridge

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY
America's Card Authority

Howard W. Bennett of Schenectady, N.Y., president of the Capitol District Bridge Association, and Dr. William S. Hutchins, that unit's representative on the League's Board of Governors, are a very fine pair of players. It would not be surprising to me to see them win one of our national tournaments one of these days. Bennett certainly gave today's hand a fine play.

I am not certain that the bidding shown is exactly the same as the bidding of Dr. Hutchins and Bennett, but that is the way it was bid at one table. East's opening lead was won in dummy with the diamond king, the nine of spades was led, West naturally did not cover, and Bennett (North) took the finesse. Feeling rather good when it held, he continued another spade and when East showed out it looked as if West had a sure spade trick. Bennett, however, decided to try on the hand, and led the ace of diamonds, cashed the ace and king of hearts and ruffed a heart in his own hand. Entering dummy with a club, he ruffed another heart with the jack of spades. The queen of clubs was cashed and a club led to dummy. This left dummy with two clubs, West with the king-eight of spades and Bennett with the ace-queen of spades. When he led a club West had to ruff, Bennett over-ruffed and made his contract of seven-odd by employing the play known as the double coup.

Trail Edged Out 1-0 in Fourth Game of Series; Deciding Fixture Tonight

Regina Ties Western Junior Semi-Final

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

SPORTS EDITOR

SQDN. LDR. BILL HANSEN and LAC. Harry Ornest, both of whom played with Currie Army Flyers in the Foothills League last summer and later with the all-star Navy club during the inter-city series at Renfrew Park here against Yanks, are decidedly optimistic regarding the outlook for baseball in Calgary.

In Edmonton on a "forty-eight," Sqdn. Ldr. Hansen is still sold on the idea of inter-league games and is hopeful that an arrangement might be worked out for the coming season.

Although the final set-up for Calgary will not be determined until the situation is clarified regarding participation of R.C.A.F. and Army players, nevertheless it appears a certainty that a snappy ball circuit will operate in the southern city. Navy is reported to have plans well advanced and at least one civilian team is already in the field.

NO SHORTAGE OF TALENT

CURRIE BARRACKS and No. 3 S.F.T.S. operated as a unit last year under the name of Currie Army Flyers and judged by material available at the moment could be well away again. Catcher Pte McDonald, whose work at Renfrew last September Edmonton fans will remember, is overseas, but Pte. Reg. Bentley could take his place.

There certainly isn't much wrong with this infield—Cpl. Doug. Kent at first, LAC. Harry Ornest at second, with Pte. Max Bentley on short and Cpl. "Whitey" Rimstad covering third. Sqdn. Ldr. Hansen, who managed the club last year also played in the outfield and others to draw from are Russ and Bill Dertell, PO. Bob Brownbridge, Sgt. Mitch Petchel, Sgt. Johnny Chad, Sgt. Jack Stover (a Piedmont leaguer), PO. Rusty Wynn and Flt. Sgt. Rennie Renauld.

Navy is understood to have "Sweeney" Schriner as playing coach for the season, along with Eddie Wares, Ab McDougall, Leo Ornest, "Moose" Giacomazzi, together with "Sugar Jim" Henry and Eddie Slowinski recently transferred from the Army, and Gilles Dube as a catcher—all of whom add up to a pretty fair start.

No. 10 Repair Depot (R.C.A.F.) has a good nucleus for a club in Pete Slobodian, Johnny Empey, Bob Webber and Herman Loblick (well known in these parts) as manager and coach. Jimmy Beddome is interested in a civilian club, three members of which are Bernie Neis, former Ponoka flinger, Kelly Riddell, who worked in the inter-city series last fall, and Ernie Ramsey of Calgary.

Incidentally, the local baseball situation still appears to be more or less static. However, the Yanks will be ready to go again and, in fact, have already re-named Coach Frank Wrigglesworth as their coach. There seems to be considerable doubt regarding Aircraft Repair Hornets, but Dodgers and Arrows have always answered John Drucey's "play" call. A second United States Army team is reported to be on the lookout for a berth.

Spruce Grove Defeats Aircraft

Bissell Girls Oust Starlets From Basketball Playoffs

The Bissell cagers came back strong in the second half of the doubleheader at Y.W.C.A. Friday night to defeat Starlets 25-14 and win the two-game, total-point semi-final in the City Girls' Basketball League playoffs by six counters, 52-46. Starlets won the opener last Tuesday 32-27. In the curtain raiser last night, Spruce Grove ousted Aircraft Repair from the consolation series by a score of 28-22.

The Riddle sisters, Gwen and Bella, paced the Bissell girls with nine and eight points respectively in their upset victory over last season's champions. The semi-final winners now meet the Y Aces in a two-game, total-point series for the title.

Connie Strachan, fast Starlet forward and a usual high scorer, was held to a pair of markers by the close checking of Edith Skitch.

Bissell out-scored the Starlets in every quarter. They took a 5-4 lead in the first and increased it to 14-5 by half-time. The Callaners marked up five points in the third session and six in the last while the losers were only able to add four and five respectively.

LINEUPS

Starlets—Dot Bolander (6); Mary Pringle (2); Phoebe Foster; Connie Strachan (2); Gladys Limming (1); Frances Fraser (2) Deniece Callaway; Evelyn McCormick (1); Helen Eckert.

Bissell—Anna Boddy (9); Bella Riddle (6); Jean Chandler (4); Dorothy Chandler; Dorothy Myers (1); Edith Skitch; Dorothy Quilley (2); Marie Schwary.

CALLER CALLAHAN PACES SPRUCE GROVE CLUB

Helen Callahan tallied 14 points in the opener last night to lead the Spruce Grove girls in their 28-22 triumph over Aircraft Repair in their upset victory over last season's champions. The semi-final winners now meet the Y Aces in a two-game, total-point series for the title.

Ruth Moore came through with 10 points for the Aircrafters, but it wasn't backed up as well as Helen Callahan's performance.

The winners out-scored their rivals 6-4 in the first quarter and 8-4 in the second to take a 14-8 lead at half-time. Spruce Grove added eight more in the third while the losers were held to four, to lead by a 22-12 margin at the three-quarter mark. Aircraft Repair out-scored the finalists 10-6 in the fourth, but were unable to overcome the victors.

LINEUPS

Aircraft Repair—Ruth Moore (10); Jean Hughes; Bubbles" Ferguson; Kay Elliott (2); Dorothy Smachnuk (4).

Wiederspiel Lone Scorer As Flyers Win in Overtime

Canadian Athletic Club's Stadium Flyers captured the city bantam hockey championship Friday night when they edged out the Maple Leafs 1-0 at the 119 Street rink with a goal by Eddie Wiederspiel in the second overtime period. This was the rubber game in a best of three series.

The teams battled without any scoring for the three periods and one extra session, but at 1:50 of the second overtime canto, Eddie Wiederspiel completed a neat three-way passing play with Terry Melynchuk and Mike Barash to give the Flyers their victory and the title.

Both goalies played brilliantly in the nets and the work of Keith Randolph in the winners' cages was especially good, turning aside every shot that came his way.

Defencemen Bob Stocks and Jack Christie of the Leafs were also outstanding, playing th first 40 minutes and Peter Carp of the Flyers turned in his usual fast game, but was unable to beat Don Roberts in the losers' nets.

LINEUPS

Maple Leafs — Randolph, Barbash, Lawrence, Pasulkiu, Cudmore, Black, Erwin, Christie, Forgrave, Carp, Wiederspiel, Melynchuk, Haley, Behn, Grant.

Trail Edged Out 1-0 in Fourth Game of Series; Deciding Fixture Tonight

5,000 Fans See Winners Control Play

REGINA, March 24.— (CP) —Defenceman Andy Lambrecht's unassisted goal early in the second period Friday night gave Regina Commandos a 1-0 victory over Trail Smoke Eaters and deadlocked their western Canada junior hockey semi-final series at two games apiece. Fifth and deciding game will be played here tonight.

Winner of the series will meet either Port Arthur Flyers or St. James Canadians in the western finals.

Lambrecht's goal came at 4:01 of the second period of the speedy but close-checking game.

Neither team held much edge in previous games.

Trail surprised in the opener with a 3-1 victory, lost the second 4-3 in overtime and staved off a desperate Regina rally in the third encounter to win 6-5.

Only three penalties were handed out, minors to Frank Turik and Marky Marquess of Trail and to Chuck Sanderson of Commandos.

More than 5,000 fans saw Commandos generally control play with their driving tactics, once one did they let the smooth-passing Smokies loose and the busiest player was 16-year-old Bev. Bentley in the Trail goal. He was spectacular and responsible for holding the score down.

Lambrecht's counter ended a power play while Marquess was in the cooler, serving a holding penalty. Trail miscued on clearing the puck and the defenceman swept in at the blue line and let go a burning low shot, the disc slipping under Bentley as he fell to his knees.

Only Trail player to stand up under the tough going was centreman Turik, who was always dangerous. He almost tied the game in the dying seconds when he shook away McLeod loose but goalkeeper Al Greenaway kicked the rubber out.

Galloper Sold While Running

SAN MATEO, Calif., March 25— (AP)—Alamo Bell took so much time running the second race at Bay Meadows that she acquired a new owner between the start and the finish.

Owner J. R. Gregory watched the filly yield the lead and heard Frank Burley, a rival stable owner, ask if she was for sale.

"Right now, I'll take $750," said Gregory.

Burley waited in silence until the eighth pole.

"$850," Gregory offered.

At the sixteenth pole, Gregory had considered further. "$500," he said finally.

"Sold!" answered Burley.

Seven North Champs Declared In Army Boxing at Red Deer

By SGT. DENNY LAYZELL

RED DEER, March 24.—Northern Alberta training centres of the Canadian Army will have a great string of fighters to represent them when soldier fighters of the province battle for M.D. 13 championships at Calgary in several weeks time.

Several other boys who received byes to the district finals turned in smart performances in exhibition bouts.

Two clever bantams from Camrose, Ptes. Roy Fair and Bob McKay, who will represent the north in the novice and open classes respectively, opened the show with a pretty exhibition. Red Deer's Johnny Remmert followed up with another pretty show against Pte. Ed. Pitchford from Camrose, lightweight open contender for the district crown.

"Sadie" Sahaydak from Winnipeg, fighting in Red Deer colors, won the lightweight novice title from Sonny Marzolf, Camrose centre's contender from Wetaskiwin. Pte. Nick Savino who hails from Evanston, Illinois, and who is in training at Wetaskiwin, used a twofisted attack to win the welter novice crown from Joe Barazzoul, Vancouverite at Camrose, by a decision. The winner was the aggressor throughout.

Forcing the fight throughout and using a left to the head to advantage, 18-year-old Pte. "Toughy" Jackson from Slave Lake won the welter open crown from Pte. Ned Dobell, Golden, B.C., from A-20 Centre. Jackson is in training at Camrose.

Officials in charge of the fights were: Referees, Lieut. J. Halsey and Lieut. A. W. Taylor; Judges, Capt. H. C. Hughes, Lieut. J. A. McMullen, CSM. W. Smith and Sgt. J. Scruton.

White Sox Bring Versatile Player Up From Seattle

CHICAGO, March 25.—(BUP)— In this age of baseball specialists a versatile ball player stands out like a .300 hitter on the old Phillies.

And with baseball manpower shrinking daily a fellow who can fill more than one spot is a welcome sight on a big league team. That's why young Ed Carnett should do the Chicago White Sox plenty of good this year.

26-year-old Mister Carnett can play in four different spots six of the nine positions on a baseball team.

He was drafted by the White Sox from Seattle of the Pacific Coast League as an outfielder. But he can pitch, catch, and cover first base as well as patrol any of the three outfield posts.

Carnett turned in a 301 average with Seattle last year. It would have been higher if he hadn't injured his hand while chasing a fly. On the mound for Seattle he won four and dropped the same number in the West Coast League. And one of those victories was a no-hitter until the last batter of the game beat out an easy roller to the third baseman.

This is Carnett's second shot at the major leagues. He came up to the Chicago Cubs in 1939 as a pitcher. But the Cubs sent him down to Milwaukee. Then Detroit plying professional ball at 16 he's been with Ponca City, Oklahoma, Los Angeles, Tulsa, Milwaukee, Kansas City, Binghampton and then Seattle.

He's a ten-year veteran at 26. And he's willing to fill in at any position for Manager Jimmy Dykes' White Sox to stick in the big leagues.

Williams rolled 222, 160 and 182 for 564. They collected 1,168 in actual pins and their handicap was 115 and they are now in second place.

MIAMI, Fla., March 25.—(AP)— Johnny Adams, leading United States jockey last year, was fined $200 and suspended for the rest of the meeting by Tropical Park stewards Friday, for rough riding action in as many days for well-known riders.

Adams was accused of rough riding astride Jamoke in Thursday's seventh race. The horse ran a dead heat with Dandy Jim for first position, and a foul was claimed; racing men could not reveal a dead heat. Johnny Adams and foul combination in previous turf history.

Jockey Wendell Eads was fined $200 and suspended for the rest of the meeting Thursday for striking Mickey Drives over the head with a whip as the horse galloped beside his mount, Bygones. In each case the penalized jockey's horse was disqualified from first position and placed second.

Dodds Fails Set Two Mile Record

CLEVELAND, March 25—(AP)— Gil Dodds, indoor king of the milers, failed in his attempt to crack Greg Rice's world indoor two-mile record Friday night, finishing 14.3 seconds over the mark of eight minutes 51 seconds established by Rice.

Young came the distance in a preliminary heat but was second to Conwell in the finals, when the New Yorker matched the new time.

NEW YORK, March 25.—Luke "Hot Potato" Hamlin will use a new secret weapon during his come-back with the Athletics this season. Although Luke is 39, his mystery pitch is not called the "cold potato"; it is titled the "soft potato" because he lobs it a bit.

Hot Potato's Soft Potato should not be confused with the "Ephus" or "Balloon Ball" featured by Rip Sewell, of the Pirates. Rip's toss goes w-a-y up in the air.

Our agent, No. 9.8 Flat, who is doing espionage with the Athletics at Frederick, Md., reports: "The Soft Potato's trajectory is so elliptical that it gives the batters fits." (Always usin' code.)

CALLED "HOT POTATO"

THE report explained that, though Hamlin declined to give off any blueprints of the sluggish Spud, he did admit that he gripped the ball tightly and threw it with a motion identical to that of his fast one. Using the timorous tuber at Toronto last season, Hamlin won 21 and lost 8.

Luke Daniel Hamlin became associated with "potatoes," like a G.I. breaking in on K.P., when pitching for Brooklyn one hot afternoon in 1937 against the Cardinals at St. Louis. It was so hot that Lanky Luke paused at intervals to gasp for breath.

While gasping, he would toss the ball up and down in his glove as if it were a hot potato. A New York sports writer got such a kick out of Hamlin's handling the baking pellet that he called him "Hot potato" and the name stuck.

HARD TO HANDLE

LATER, the fans got the idea that Luke's hot-potato appellation came from his being hard to handle by Larry MacPhail. Luke denies this vigorously. He says: "The only trouble I had with MacPhail came in the spring of 1940, after I had won 20 and lost 13 for Brooklyn. I thought I was entitled to more than a $500 raise. Larry and I had some words. He said one of his reasons for not paying more was the 27 home runs the opposition got off me. That's where the story about me pitching home-run balls started.

"I said I had still won 20 games, and that ever since I had been in baseball, they always paid off on victories—not on the number of homers allowed. I said the opposition got more than 25 home runs off Carl Hubbell the year Carl won 25. But I guess that wasn't the way to handle MacPhail. Guess I'd been better off if I'd played hound dog. But that's all water under the bridge now. I'm mighty happy to be with the Athletics, and I expect a good year."

Despite Luke's soft-potato delivery, he probably will not be able to work every fourth day this season. He's willing, but he's 39. Last year he pitched every fifth day with Toronto for Burleigh Grimes while perfecting his secret weapon.

Coach Hap Day Satisfied With Leafs' Showing so Far

TORONTO, March 25.—(CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs returned from Montreal Friday, quietly confident for the resumption of their semi-final Stanley Cup series tonight with Montreal Canadiens. The best-of-seven series now is tied 1-1 after two games in Montreal.

Coach Clarence (Hap) Day, who expressed himself as satisfied with the showing of his team in Montreal where they won 3-1 Tuesday night and lost 5-1 Thursday night, said "We had to win one game in Montreal to have a chance of taking the series."

Day was annoyed over an incident in Thursday night's game in which a spectator seized Bob Davidson's stick before the veteran left winger's check — Maurice Richard—scored the first of his five goals in the game.

"That certainly cost us one goal and it may have cost us the game," said Day. "I won't say that Canadiens wouldn't eventually have won the game anyway but when Canadiens got the first goal we had to change our style of play and that gave them a chance for more goals. Referee Bill Chadwick just didn't seem to see the stick-grabbing incident."

Davidson suffered a charley-horse in the first game but other players came home with only superficial injuries.

Canadiens arrived this morning to resume the series, fourth game of which will be played here Tuesday night.

Takes Medical

PITTSBURGH, March 25.—(AP)—Teddy Yarosz, former middleweight boxing champion of the world, weighed in for the big fight Thursday as a heavyweight, 190 pounds.

The boxer who took the title from Vince Dundee in 1933 and lost it to Babe Risko in 1935, took pre-induction medical tests here.

Pirates' $35,000 Southpaw Ready To Go This Year

MUNCIE, Ind., March 25.—(AP)—Pitcher John Gee, the 6-foot-9-inch southpaw, picked up by Pittsburgh Pirates four years ago for $35,000 only to wreck his arm on the first day in spring camp, now appears ready to begin paying dividends.

Gee is one of the eight hurlers, half of whom are 4-F's, training with the Bucs at the Muncie camp and has shown signs of recovering the form which made him a 20-game winner for Syracuse in 1939. It was after that record the Pirates completed their historic $75,000 deal, paying $10,000 apiece for four players and peeling off $35,000 for Gee.

The following spring, in San Bernardino, Calif., Gee was welcomed into camp in the morning and lost the effectiveness of his arm by afternoon. Observers said the misery set in when he opened up by throwing curves.

"I guess I just threw too hard too soon, that's all," Gee recalled Friday. "But now my arm feels fine. I only hope I can do the Bucs some good this year."

Manager Frankie Frisch thinks he can and will.

Gee, who was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1937 after starring in basketball and baseball, was so pessimistic about achieving his ambition as a major-league pitcher that he asked for voluntary retirement in 1940. But Commissioner K. M. Landis refused to grant it.

After Gee had reported to three minor league clubs and had refused to stay with two others, he finally was retired in 1942 and took a coaching job at the Adams, N.Y., high school.

His arm started coming back. Last spring he worked out with the Syracuse and Toronto clubs and upon their recommendation applied for reinstatement in baseball, which was granted.

Rejoining Pittsburgh, he won four and lost four last year.

OTTAWA, March 25.—(CP)—Production of munitions by Defence Industries Limited has a total value of more than $517,000,000, Munitions Minister Howe said yesterday in the commons.

The fee paid by the government on this production was $4,174,600 or .8 per cent.

The total value of plants designed and built for the government was $94,175,000 on which a fee of $1,132,700 or 1.2 per cent was paid. The average overall fee for production and construction was .86 per cent, said Mr. Howe. The fees, however, were segregated in a new company with a $1,-600,000 capitalization and so were subject to heavy taxation. The net fee after taxation was one fifth of one per cent.

Civil Service Out of Politics Says Speaker

REGINA, March 25.—(CP)—The civil service has been taken out of politics by the establishment of independent civil service commission, William T. Aiken, Edmonton, past-president of the Alberta Civil Service Association, said in an address to the Saskatchewan Civil Service Association convention here yesterday.

Mr. Aiken dealt mainly with suggestions for an improved civil service administration, stressing the fact that sound administration depended upon stability in the service, based on security of tenure for those in positions of responsibility.

FAIR COMPENSATION

Another improvement in civil service suggested by Mr. Aiken was a system of classification of service, to ensure fair compensation for the job done. In government departments where such a system was not in operation, persons doing the same jobs often received divergent rates of pay.

A satisfactory classification system was in operation in Alberta civil service, he said.

Establishment of an inter-provincial committee on civil service affairs, now under consideration, would do much to promote efficient administration within the service, Mr. Aiken recommended two representatives from each of the four western provinces sit on the committee.

Premier W. J. Patterson expressed pride in the efficiency and courtesy of the civil servants of Saskatchewan.

Details of Future Plane Production Asked by Workers

VANCOUVER, March 25.—(CP)—Details of future aircraft production plans in Canada were requested by Aero-Nautical Mechanics Lodge, 756, in a wire despatched yesterday to Munitions Minister Howe.

"Recent layoffs in plants of Boeing Aircraft have created much unrest, and a feeling of insecurity which is damaging to production," the union told, Mr. Howe.

"Mr. Burke (Stanley Burke, president Boeing Aircraft) can give no assurance that further contracts will be forthcoming, and the membership desire information as to whether the industry will be maintained here in Vancouver."

Actor Divorced

LOS ANGELES, March 25.—(AP)—Harry Ritz, of the film clowning Ritz Brothers, was given "irresponsible" at home, Betty Mae Ritz testified yesterday in obtaining a divorce. "All he wanted was to go to night clubs and gamble," she added. "Besides, he was mean and very crude. He used to say things in front of other people that were awful."

Hold Two Youths On Robbery Count

Of three youths found in premises unlawfully Friday night, two were locked up after being found in possession of stolen goods. The third boy, who gave his age as 11 years, found in a 101 street shop, told authorities he had entered the place in order to see the machines.

An officer's shirt, five rolls of films, and two boxes of staples, were among articles found on two youths in army uniform, when they were detained by U.S. Army authorities about 11:15 p.m. Friday.

The lads, 16 and 17 years of age, respectively, were found in one of the army huts, city police said. The elder boy was said to have admitted taking the goods. Both were placed in the lock-up.

Paul Holubisky, proprietor of the Western Cabinet shop, 11014 101 street, informed police about 7:35 p.m. that he was holding the 11-year-old boy he found hiding on the premises.

Police learned from the lad that he had entered the shop after removing a pane of glass from a rear window, using a knife to remove the nails that held the glass in place. Once inside, he intended to place glass in the window while he "looked at the machinery."

At a recent gathering of the Hudson's Bay Company store staff, Charles Potvin was the recipient of a long service medal in recognition of his 15-year service with the company. Mr. Potvin joined the staff of the Edmonton store in March, 1929, and is employed as a tailor in the men's clothing department. The award carries with it a cheque and the privilege of an extra week's holiday with pay. H. A. S. Johnson made the presentation. Mr. Potvin is proud of the fact that he has seven sons and one daughter in the armed services.

City Will Spend $10,000 On Anti-Mosquito Drive

Edmonton's city council Friday night gave the "green light" for the expenditure of an amount not exceeding $10,000 during 1944 for a campaign designed to abate the mosquito nuisance in the city.

The motion inaugurating the campaign was made by Ald. James H. Gillis and was seconded by Ald. Sidney Parsons. It was passed unanimously. Council instructed the city commissioners to bring forward a report on the costs of the campaign, and also on methods to be employed in carrying it through.

City Engineer Haddow said that a campaign had been carried on in Winnipeg and had been extremely successful. He said the cost of the campaign there varied from $10,000 to $17,000 annually, depending on the wetness of the season. He was of the opinion that costs of a campaign here would be somewhat similar to those at Winnipeg.

He said he was satisfied that such a campaign would result in a considerable improvement in the mosquito nuisance in the city.

Dr. G. M. Little, questioned concerning the possibility of such a campaign, voiced the opinion that it should be undertaken. His department would co-operate with the city engineer's in this work.

The carrying out of a campaign to abate the mosquito nuisance was suggested by Professor John H. Brown, University of Alberta, in an exclusive interview in The Bulletin on Friday. Last year he predicted the most serious outbreak of mosquitoes in the city's history, and his prediction for 1944 was that a fairly severe outbreak would occur this summer unless abatement measures were taken at the water run-off period.

Hands, Feet Frozen, City Visitor Dies

Joe Bourgen, Coal Valley, taken from an Edmonton hotel room to the Royal Alexandra hospital, about 4:30 p.m. Thursday, died there at 1:45 a.m. Saturday, city police stated.

It was discovered that the man had suffered frozen fingers of both hands and toes of both feet, and he was removed to hospital.

No inquest will be held, it is understood.

Charge Calgarian Dangerous Driving

Russell J. McDonald, 1104 Tenth street North, Calgary, was placed under arrest about 1 a.m. Saturday, charged by Edmonton city police with dangerous driving, after the auto he had been operating was alleged to have struck another car operated by V. S. Sharko, Leduc, at 109 street and Jasper avenue. The latter vehicle was pushed in front of a moving street car.

Sharko told police that he had stopped for the tram, which was about half-way through the intersection, when McDonald's car struck his, causing the rear end of the vehicle to swing into the path of the tram. With him at the time, said Sharko, were Lydin Sharko, Alexandria Pyrey, Leo Sharko and Andrew Boiys, all of Leduc. None was injured.

McDonald was said to have offered no explanation as to how the accident occurred, and was arrested.

Pleading guilty to the charge against him in city police court on Saturday morning, he was fined $50 and costs or two months' imprisonment by Magistrate A. L. Millar, K.C. He stated his desire to be placed on the interdict list, rather than lose his driver's license. This was granted.

City Employees' Annual Banquet Is Successful

The annual banquet and dance of the Edmonton Civic Employees' Federation was held in the Masonic Temple on Friday evening. About 200 guests attended.

In a toast to the City of Edmonton, Malcolm Ainslie, member of the Western War Labor Board said, "It is the friendly spirit, the vision and the foresight of the people that has made Edmonton what it is today."

"This spirit of friendliness has prevailed for forty years and more. Of course we have made mistakes but only dead people make no mistakes, and we are certainly a thriving community."

MAYOR REPLIES

Mayor John Fry, in reply to this toast, said he regretted he could not go back 40 years to tell of the friendly spirit prevailing in Edmonton but he could remember back to 1905. At that time he took a walk, to look at the scenery and happened to walk into the penitentiary that was being constructed. On completing this penitentiary, it was found there was no one to put in it, consequently it was turned into a furniture warehouse.

"This in my opinion, shows as clearly as anything the goodwill, and friendly spirit which still prevails among the citizens of Edmonton today," said Mayor Fry.

ADDRESS OF WELCOME

The welcoming address was given by E. E. Brown, toastmaster of the banquet and president of the Civic Employees' Federation.

J. A. McCool, secretary of the City Telephone department, toasted the ladies, and the reply was given by Mrs. A. Farmillo. J. Billingsley, president of the City Street Railway Union toasted the armed forces, their allies and the mercantile marine.

Artists to appear on the program were Miss Fidelia Camillo, soloist with piano accordion accompaniment, and Bill Smith, soloist and leader of the community singing. Bingo and dancing followed the dinner.

Special guests were Mayor John Fry and Mrs. Fry, and Mrs. C. E. Brown, R. J. Gibb, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. A. Farmillo, J. A. McCool, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Ainslie, Mr. and Mrs. J. Billingsley, Mr. and Mrs. J. Myler, Mr. and Mrs. J. Pullen, and Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Mitchell.

The arrangements and program were made by the social committee, chairman F. G. Mitchell. J. Billingsley, Guy Fraser, E. Kenny, M. Ainslie, J. Lauder, J. Myer and J. Stapen.

The Inquiring Reporter

THE QUESTION

What do you think of the proposal to start a campaign of mosquito abatement in Edmonton?

THE ANSWERS

GERALD O'CONNOR, K.C.: After the terrible plague of mosquitoes last year, I should think that every Edmontonian would welcome such a plan. Some consideration should be given by civic authorities to starting one this year. Any plan would have to have the sanction and assistance of the city administration, and as estimates are now being considered, immediate action is needed to have the necessary appropriation set aside for this work.

ALD. SIDNEY PARSONS: I am in favor of any plan that will bring about an abatement of this nuisance. I understand that several western cities have undertaken such a campaign in conjunction with civic organizations and they have been extremely successful. There is no reason why something should not be done to end the mosquito nuisance which was terrible last year.

JAMES HORTON, caretaker: I like going down to the river in the summer, but last year it was not possible because of the plague of mosquitoes. I am sure that members of community leagues, golf clubs and other sports organizations would combine to put over any abatement project. Such a project should be initiated by the civic authorities.

Sgt. Vera Isbister, of Edmonton, has been promoted from the rank of corporal in the Canadian Women's Army Corps, it was announced by headquarters, M.D. 13 in Calgary. Sgt. Exhibitor

Clem Loughlin, Viking, former National and Western Canada Hockey Leagues star, who will exhibit in the pure-bred bull classes at the annual bull sale sponsored by the Edmonton Exhibition Association and the Alberta Cattle Breeders' Association.

Record Entry For Bull Sale Is Reported Here

The largest number of entries in the recent history of the Edmonton Exhibition Association has been received for the annual sale of pure-bred bulls staged in connection with the spring livestock show. The date of the sale is April 13.

Entries aggregating 186 have been received from breeders all over the province. Of this number 143 are of the Shorthorn breed, 23 are Herefords, and 19 Aberdeen Angus.

The sale is under the auspices of the Edmonton Exhibition Association and the Alberta Provincial Cattle Breeders' Association. The auctioneers will be J. W. Dunn, Calgary, and Don Hall, Edmonton.

The annual banquet and general meeting of the Northern Alberta Shorthorn Club will be held at the Corona hotel on Wednesday, April 12, at 6:30 p.m.

NEW EXHIBITORS

A feature of the entries for this sale is the number of new exhibitors, and for the first time Clem Loughlin, famous hockey star of Western Canada and National Hockey League fame, is an exhibitor. He is showing a bull in the Shorthorn class for animals of 18 months and under.

Satisfactory entries have been received for the sale of registered bred sows, with the chief breeders of the district entering stock.

C. E. Wilson, manager of the association, stated Saturday that the entries this year for the bull sale are the best in recent years, and amply reward the association for its policy of increasing prize money in these classes.

Jury Places No Blame in Truck Death

Death of Paul Hiniuk, 12831 56 street, which occurred on the way to Royal Alexandra hospital about 10 p.m. Saturday last, following injuries received by falling from a truck being operated by John Kreitz, Edmonton, was found by a coroner's jury, Friday afternoon, to be entirely accidental. The jury found the cause of death was from multiple fractures of the skull and lacerations of the brain.

Dr. J. Ower, who preformed a post-mortem, stated that Hiniuk had also suffered fractures of four ribs on the right side of the body.

John Kreitz, owner and operator of the truck, told of picking Hiniuk up in North Edmonton, while he, his wife and Bert Gordon, also of Edmonton, were on their way to Fort Saskatchewan. It was on the return trip that he passed Hiniuk's stopping place, said Kreitz, and he had turned the truck and driven back.

CRAWLED OVER SIDE

Bert Gordon, who had been riding in the truck box with Hiniuk, stated that the latter had crawled over the side of the box, apparently, instead of jumping over, as he felt the truck. At the same time he notified the driver that they had reached Hiniuk's stopping place, he felt a soft bump as the wheel passed over him.

The jury was composed of J. W. Parks, foreman; F. LeGassick, John Norrington, John Hay, J. Stansfield and J. Ryan.

Dr. F. A. Brailsworth, chief provincial coroner, presided, while the inquiry was conducted by William McDonald, coroner's assistant.

D. W. Cobbledick represented the truck owner, John Krietz.

ST. MARY'S
By Nora McGannon

Silence fell in the darkened auditorium as the heading "High Over the Borders" flashed on the screen. This story of the migration of birds was very appropriate for the first day of spring when we are looking forward to welcoming our feathered friends back after a long winter's absence. The next film, "The Symphony Orchestra" which was especially interesting for music students and appreciation classes showed the relation between the composer, conductor and orchestra, also the various choirs that make up the orchestra and the function of each. "Finding Your Life Work," which was in the vocational guidance fields, gave one an idea of how to go about choosing their life's work. "The Owner Goes Aboard" was a story of a taxpayer who decided he would like to see what the government is doing with his money. To his surprise bullets, shells, depth charges, guns, etc., cost a great deal. He then resolved to put more money in war stamps and bonds.

We are pleased to announce that the girls of St. Mary's won second place in the inter-school competition at the annual basketball party

Our interests for the next few weeks will be our Easter exams, which will start on Thursday.

WESTGLEN
By Jack Gibbons

Last night, commencing at 8:30, a Victory Ball was held in honor of Westglen's senior basketball champions. It was generally agreed by the large turnout that a good time had been provided. The boys are now in Lethbridge, competing for the provincial championship.

This week the house league basketball teams have reached the semi-finals. The games have proceeded according to schedule, and much enthusiasm has been displayed

Students are preparing to face the ordeal of Easter Exams, which are to be written from April 3 to 6 inclusive.

A very entertaining Lit including talent from various schools and organized by Miss Helen Porter, was held in the Auditorium yesterday. Some Westglen students participated

EASTWOOD
By Susanna Alexeeff

Group Captain R. M. Smith, commanding officer of No. 3 "M" Depot, presented three Eastwood boys with awards, as being the best .22 rifle shots, in a competition staged by the officers of the depot. The boys who received the cup awards were Bill Boyar, Russell Warwaruk and Bob Mitchell, who along with the rest of the army cadets had been going to the depot for rifle practise two days a week.

The annual girls' city basketball tournament was held last Monday at Westglen with Eastwood being one of the seven teams represented. Eastwood won three games out of four, and tied for first place with St. Mary's, but since Eastwood had obtained a higher score total, it was awarded the top honors. Shirley Smith tied for third place with Peggy Edwards of Scona, as high scorer for the evening. In the shooting drill, Evelyn McCormick came in second place. Following their activities, refreshments were served to the girls.

The boys' basketball team has played numerous games this year, and has practiced with the girls' team. Those on the team are: Ron Chapman, Doug. Leitch, Bob. Mitchell, Jim Anderson, Bob Buker, Bill Boyar, Doug. Bressey and Glen Wells.

Th fourth edition of the Gazette is expected to be out next Wednesday at noon.

ST. JOSEPH'S
By Henry Yamauchi

The days are rolling on just as quickly as the British 8th Army did in Axis infested North Africa, a year ago. This means that Easter is around the corner and that the Easter exams are already facing us. "Tempus" certainly "fugits". The boys of St. Joseph's high school, especially those of grade XII are busy studying for the examinations which will begin on March 28.

The Students' Union has appointed a committee to organize a "Lit" for March 31. According to Dame Rumor, all plans are progressing favorably.

In fulfilment of campaign promises, the Students' Unions of St. Joseph's and St. Mary's have agreed upon amalgamating the papers of the two schools under the co-editorship of Maxine Wilkes and Grant DeFraine. It is hoped that the first issue will be out before Easter. The success of this new venture depends wholly upon the co-operation it receives from both schools, and the students' body of both institutions are urged to support it to the full.

VICTORIA
By Dolores Kimball

The schedule for the boys' house league basketball was completed Monday night. McCormack dropped two games of a double header to Odynski and Drever while Brazer defaulted to Odynski. The three top teams are. Odynski with fourteen points, Melynchuk with thirteen and McCormack with 10. The finals are scheduled for next week.

Vic's year play "Milestones" continued through the last part of the week and the final performance is set for Saturday.

Arrangements for the school's academic and athletic parties are beginning to get underway.

STRATHCONA
By John Macdonald

With Easter just around the corner, the students are really buckling down to their studying and those who aren't studious are getting worried about the situation of things to come. Exams start next Wedensday and last till the day before Good Friday.

This week the school was presented with a painting of Prime Minister Winston Churchill, painted by Ray Miles, former Scona student. The presentation was in recognition of the outstanding results of Scona's recent war stamp drive.

Final plans for the annual publication of the "Tricolor" have been completed and the book will soon go to press. The staff includes: Gwen MacGregor, editor; Jack Chapman, Harold Berge, co-editors; Jerry Johnson, Don Gerlitz, Zel Sauder, June Sigsworth, John Macdonald, Gordon Whidon, Hubert Irving, Ray Gould, Peggy Shewell, Marie McLeod, Peggy Edwards, Ken Cox, and Mr. Clark, staff advisor.

McDOUGALL
By Reva Taradash

A high school girls' basketball tournament was played at Westglen Monday. The competing schools were Eastwood, St. Mary's, Commercial, Normal, Westglen, Victoria and Scona. Commercial ranked third in the games played, but came first in the free throw contest, while Scona came second. In the shooting drill contest, Edna Roberts from Commercial was first as she secured 17 points out of a possible 21. Also, as the highest scorer for the four games played. Commercial was duely proud of her. May Tennent stood third in place with 15 points.

Preparations for a Lit, sponsored by the drama club, are underway. With new and original numbers, the program promises to be a real treat for all who attend. The Lit will include musical numbers and a short play. The exact date has not been set but the event is expected to take place just before Easter.

The War Savings drive is progressing favorably with stiff competition between rooms 11 and 16. Other rooms are also doing their share to put Commercial over the top.

Air Cadet Rifle Team Ends Shoot

By Jack Day

The Air Cadet Rifle team, having finished firing in the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association competition, is practising to meet the other city cadet units in a local competition next Wednesday.

In the D.C.R.A. competition, the team fired three sets of targets, one a month for the first three months of the year. The last set was fired last week. The unofficial average for the team over the three months was 92 per cent., an increase of six per cent. over the results in last year's competition. Next Wednesday the rifle team will compete with the crack marksmen of the sea and army cadets for the city honors. Although they will be firing at a different type of target than that to which they are accustomed, the Air Cadet marksmen are confident in their ability to give their friendly rivals some stiff opposition.

Wednesday saw the cadets subjected to another of the recent flood of examinations. The test this time was in signals, a subject that the cadets have studied longer than any other on the syllabus. It has not been stated as yet what subject will be taught in place of the signals.

Perhaps the most vital concern of the Edmonton Air Cadet squadron at present is the drive for funds commencing Monday. The Air Cadet league, through its local units, is asking the public for $250,000 in order that it may carry on with its work of educating the Canadian youth for the important part it will play in the aviation future of Canada.

Former Screen Actress Found Mentally Unfit

SEATTLE, March 25.—(AP)—Frances Farmer, the former glamorous screen star who rose from a theatre usherette to become the toast of Hollywood and Broadway, was ordered sent to the Western State Hospital near Tacoma, Wash., on an insanity complaint filed by her mother.

The King (Seattle) county sanity commission issued the order. The brilliant actress's sorrowing mother, Mrs. Lillian V. Farmer, told Doctors D. A. Nicholson and George E. Price, commission members, that her daughter needed institutional care as she was entirely unable to control her at home.

Official records at the county courthouse here stated Miss Farmer was hysterical at the time of her examination yesterday in the King County hospital.

Asked if she had lost weight, she slapped one of her examiners in the abdomen and cried: "It looks like you could lose some weight."

The order sending her to the hospital was made under the 30-year-old actress' present name, Mrs. F. E. Anderson, records in the county clerk's office showed.

GARDEN FAIRIES

(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color.)

Susie May and Teddy put on their wraps. Susie May's hat was PINK (use RED lightly) with GRAY puffs of fur on either side. And her coat was PINK too, with a GRAY fur collar. Her leggings and gloves were GRAY. Teddy put on his BLUE sailor cap and BLUE coat trimmed with a curly GRAY fur. He wore TAN (YELLOW and BROWN mixed) shoes. His hair was BROWN and Susie May's was YELLOW. They were very ROSY (PINK) cheeked children.

Mr. Owl wore a RED cap and vest with GOLD buttons down the front. He had a bright GREEN necktie and wore an eyeglass on the end of a long YELLOW ribbon. Mr. Owl was dark BROWN above his big GOLD eyes, and large, horny YELLOW beak, but his cheeks were a pale BROWN (use more water in your BROWN and add a touch of YELLOW to it). His wing feathers and tail were dark BROWN but he was light BROWN, like his cheeks below his vest and on the underside of his wings. He carried a big RED dictionary, with GOLD edges and decorations on it, under one wing. His boots were bright RED (leave white shiny spots on it where indicated) trimmed with GRAY fur.

"The Garden Fairies are at work tonight," said Mr. Owl, "and the big YELLOW moon is looking out of the dark BLUE sky. Come out and I'll show them to you."

"O!" cried Teddy and Susie May together. "That would be fine!"

There are the pussy-willows," said Mr. Owl, leading them across the GREEN grass. "We can see them well from this GRAY gravel path. See how PURPLE all our shadows look?"

"Oh my!" Susie May clasped her hands. "Look at the kittens climbing on those long BROWN branches. I love those little YELLOW striped ones."

"I like the GRAY ones though that white one dancing with the GRAY kitten is a pretty lass," said the owl.

"Look, they are dressed like Mexican dancers. She has a RED rose and scarf and he has a tall YELLOW hat and a RED and YELLOW sash," cried Teddy.

One of the GRAY spotted kittens is throwing a RED rose to the dancers," said the owl. "The BLACK and white kittens are very serious. See the one in a PINK cape. She would prefer opera to this dance." All the kittens wear ribbons. The GRAY kittens wear BLUE and have BLUE eyes. The tiger kits have GREEN ribbons and GREEN eyes while the spotted ones have YELLOW eyes and wear PINK. The wall is YELLOW-BROWN (use most YELLOW) with a GRAY stone top.

"The YELLOW house next door is very much interested, you see," said the owl, "he opens his GREEN shutters every night so he can see better. Look at him grinning."

And sure enough, the RED porch roof made a very happy mouth

"His hair (roof) is BROWN, isn't it?" said Teddy.

"Yes, look at that fluffy PINK tree looking too," said Susie May "And those big YELLOW sunflowers. Their faces are BROWN as biscuits."

"See the tall tree by the wall," cried Teddy. "The moon is smelling one of its light PURPLE flowers."

"Oh that — with the slender GREEN trunk," explained the owl, "She's very foolish. The fairy on the wall is scolding her."

The fairy wore a light GREEN cap and suit and light PURPLE wings. There are two other fairies. The one in an ORANGE color (use RED and YELLOW mixed) cloak with RED legs is arguing with the tulips. They are YELLOW and RED and PINK tulips with GREEN leaves and they are growing in a BROWN bed that is edged about with RED bricks.

"They are very stubborn," said the owl. "They come from Holland. See how PINK the fairy's face has become. He is telling them that they are out too soon and will catch cold!"

The other fairy has light GREEN wings and is dressed in light PURPLE, he is telling some little BLUE flowers that Jack Frost is still about. There are some YELLOW flowers by the wall.

"It's very odd," said the owl, "but would you believe it, lots of these ungrateful flowers get so mad with the fairies for telling them to wait that they never appear again. Especially those big YELLOW star flowers in the grass. Oh I can show you a lot of things," added Mr. Owl, mysteriously, and flapped his wings and flew away.

The border is light PURPLE and the lettering is light GREEN.

City Council Passes Budget For New Year

amount to an estimated $45,000 this year compared with an actual cost of $43,285.39 in 1943.

$163,906 SET ASIDE

An amount of $163,906 has been set aside in the 1944 construction and contingencies account compared with $227,178.61 in 1943. It is anticipated that discount on taxes will cost $65,000 in 1944 against an actual cost of $64,041.87 last year.

Based on a 49½ mill rate the general municipal taxes will yield an estimated $3,298,500. This figure includes $445,500 in taxes to be paid by the civic owned utilities. Previously these taxes were paid direct to the city treasury by the utilities concerned and were not included in the tax levy.

Surpluses from the utilities will amount to an estimated $333,105, and the five per cent revenue tax to $347,395. It is anticipated that $1,126,000 will accrue to the city from surpluses, taxes and the five per cent revenue tax. This is the equivalent of approximately 20 mills at the 49½ rate.

Other items of miscellaneous revenue are: gas franchise, $75,000; civic block rentals, $7,725; business tax, $310,000; provincial government contribution in lieu of service tax, $30,000; penalties, $18,000, and sundry revenue sources, $5,000.

QUESTION OVER-CROWDING

During the discussion on the billing section's estimates aldermen asked concerning over-crowding in this department. Ald. James H. Ogilvie asked the commissioners to give consideration to the transferring of some civic department to a downtown property owned by the city. He said the land department could be located usefully in a structure on Jasper avenue. Another suggestion made was the moving of the Museum of Arts to a civic owned building on Jasper avenue or other suitable location.

The great majority of accidents on the street railway system resulted from inexperience, Thomas Ferrier, street railway superintendent, told aldermen during the discussion on street railway department estimates. He said that of the 130 claims made in accidents 120 were the result of street car accidents and 10 from trolley bus accidents.

It is anticipated that the commissioners will make a recommendation to city council next Monday night relative to the 1944 mill rate. The general feeling among the aldermen is that the mill rate of 49½ which prevailed in 1943 should be again struck this year.

WATERWORKS REVENUE

Estimated revenue from the waterworks department is set at 941,000 with expenditures at $920,435 to leave a surplus of $20,565. Taxes payable by this department amount to $153,970, and it is proposed to place $115,000 in the renewal reserve account.

Prisoners' Guards To Be Dealt With By Court Martial

OTTAWA, March 25—(CP)—The defence department announced last night that a summary of evidence has been taken and court martial proceedings initiated "in connection with an affair at Buckingham, Que., recently concerning prisoners of war and their guards."

(Buckingham town council recently passed a resolution asking that more supervision be exercised over German prisoners of war working in a lumber camp at nearby Thurso, Que., following complaints to Mayor Philippe Matte that guards were fraternizing with the prisoners when they were brought into Buckingham for medical or dental treatment.)

Ram River Oils Limited Plans Development, Exploratory Work

Considerable development and exploratory work is indicated on the Ram River-Clearwater anticline this year following the bringing in of the No. 2 well drilled by Ram River Oils Limited, according to reports current here.

The Ram River-Clearwater area lying about 70 miles west of Red Deer, has won wide attention since the Ram Oils No. 2 well came in as a producer of a crude oil considered to be the best lubricating oil produced in this province. The oil is stated to be comparable to "mid-continent," the basic crude oil standard throughout the American continent.

Since the well was brought in exploratory and other oil leases covering more than 500,000 acres have been taken out by different companies in planning what is believed to be a big development program this year.

An ambitious drilling program has been outlined by the Ram River company, and the No. 3 well has been spudded in, and has been drilled to a depth of 150 feet. It is located 1,342 feet north and east of No. 2 and is considered by the company's geologist and is an offset well to No. 2 discovery well.

It is located a little higher on the structure and is expected to be 800 to 1,000 feet shallower than No. 2.

DRILLING IN PROGRESS

Drilling operations on No. 3 well are being carried out with a 12½ inch rock bit and the most modern of drilling equipment. The spudding in of the No. 4 well by the company is contemplated shortly.

"We are proceeding on the assumption that Ram River No. 2 well has established the existence of a high pressure reservoir of oil and gas," I. B. Howatt, K.C., president and managing director of the company stated.

"Having regard to the large company holdings and the location of the No. 2 well we have high hopes that we will encounter that reservoir," he said.

The company holds 16,000 acres in the Ram River-Clearwater structure, and also controls the property south of this structure on which the Altoba drilled a test well in which a very heavy flow was encountered. This well is located on the Clearwater structure.

Commenting on the gas pressure at the Ram River Oils Ltd. No. 2 well, H. E. Denton, of Messrs Denton and Spencer, Calgary, petroleum engineers, stated: "That from information at hand it was evident that the oil being produced was entering the drilled hole through a restricted passage behind which there was an accumulation of oil and gas at high pressure. During the period when this well was being acidized and tested for production rate the maximum build-up pressure was noted to be 600 pounds. Since the acidation and testing period casing pressure as high as 700 pounds has been witnessed, I would like to point out here that the fact that the maximum build-up pressures are higher than when the well was being produced indicate the theory of higher pressures existing in the formation are correct. It is quite possible that should a well be drilled into this high pressure area it could result in a large producer.

NEW OILS

"Temperatures as low as 45 degrees F. have been found in new oil brought from 4000 feet. To me this subnormally low temperature can be caused by only one thing and that is the oil has been present with gas while the latter has been expanded by the passage from a high pressure zone in the vicinity of this well and the mixture of oil and gas is passing through a small crevice or crevices into the drilled hole. Another factor which points to a high pressure supply is that while the well was being drilled and the present producing zone penetrated free oil actually entered the drilled hole even against the hydrostatic head of the drilling fluid, the pressure at 4300 feet would be in excess of 1850 pounds. I would suggest the location of the next well be made so as to encounter this same producing zone at a higher level, also to drill a larger hole."

Indicating the vast plans for this year the Northwest Company, a subsidary of the Imperial Oil Ltd., has some 300,000 acres under exploratory leases in the Brazeau field, north west of the Ram River No. 2 well.

The Anglo Canadian Oils Ltd., has entered the field also and is reported to hold 39,000 acres in leases. Cleartay Oils Ltd., is another concern that has entered the field and is contemplating development plans fop 1944.

Essentials of Life Taught by Good Mother

Such a Woman Is Not a Human Doormat; She Teaches Her Children Things That Fit Them for World's Hard Knocks

What is a good mother? The average woman's ideal of a good mother is a human doormat, and the more she lets her children trample on her and kick her around, the better mother she considers herself. It is a common thing to hear a woman boast that when her first baby was born she gave up her clubs and her old friends and her accomplishments, and that she never touches the piano, or paints any now, or keeps up with the new books, or goes anywhere. She just stays at home and devotes herself to her children.

These women, who belong to the class that Bernard Shaw describes as being so much nother they are scarcely human, think that they are a noble and inspiring example of mother love and they sacrifice themselves on the altar of their children, and they are scathingly critical of the women who just take motherhood in their stride and who keep in the running themselves while they are running the nursery.

"GOOD MOTHERS"

As a matter of fact, the women who are ALL mother are the worst possible mothers because by the time their youngsters are out of the cradle they have lost their influence over them. Children are brutal little realists and it doesn't take them long to size Mother up for what she is, and if she has made a slave of herself for them, they treat her as one. They take all of her labor and self-denial as no more than their due, and they defy her opinions because they have no respect for one who doesn't stand up for herself.

Many women consider themselves good mothers because they spoil their children to death. They cannot bear to discipline the little darlings and make them behave. They work their fingers to the bones so their children may be idle. They wear patched shoes so that Sally may have forty pairs of fancy slippers and Johnny enough money to run with his gang. And the result is that they rear a lot of young hoodlums who bring them nothing but sorrow and shame.

You never hear of a girl going astray or a boy being a drunkard or a thief that a poor, weeping woman doesn't sob out a story about what a good mother she has been, and how she always sacrificed everything for her children.

PREPARE CHILDREN

A good mother is one who is good FOR her children as well as good TO them. She tries to prepare them for life by teaching them the things that will fit them to deal with a world that isn't going to be soft-padded with mother love. From the time they can understand anything at all she breeds into them courage and the ability to take bumps and come up smiling. She teaches them self-control, a sense of responsibility, and how to get along with people.

She teaches them how to work, how to make money and how to save it and spend it judiciously. She teaches them how to give and take, and she drills into them good manners and good morals. And because she loved her children, not only well but wisely, they grow up into the men and women who are worthwhile.

To be a good mother a woman has to have strength of character and courage and a stiff backbone as well as a mother heart, for she needs them all in her job.

Eleanor Roosevelt

MY DAY

SOMEWHERE IN THE WEST INDIES—Saturday we flew over many islands. The one that looked the most interesting from the air was Saba, which belongs to Curacao. As far as one can see from the air, one is going to sit down into the sea, but there must be a landing place somewhere. The summit has a number of very flat places, and these are dotted with little red-roofed houses with fields laid out in regular squares.

St. Christopher's Island was pointed out to me, and I feel sure it must be what I have always heard called St. Kitt's. In a very short time we landed on Antigua. The governor and some of the island officials met me, and we exchanged regrets that I would only have time to see some American troops. Then I proceeded to see the men, the barracks, mess halls, kitchens, libraries and recreation rooms. I was sorry not to be able to go to St. John's to see the cathedral which was built in 1678.

We went on the St. Lucia where again I was met by the governor and some of the island officials. I spent my time at this base as usual, visiting the men and the barracks and the hospital. Our final flight was into Trinidad, where we arrived in time to leave our bags at Colonel William V. Battan's house, which he very kindly turned over to us, and then we went immediately to mess with the men.

The band played outside while we ate, and the music was delightful. We had a particularly nice group of young men—one Puerto Rican and the others from various states in the Union. They asked me about rationing at home, as usual, and seemed to think that people were not getting enough to eat.

I told them that was not really true though it was just that we were not accustomed to the point system and not being able to buy what ever we needed. One boy said "My mother has always had a big family and she is accustomed to laying in supplies on Saturday, but she can't do it now." I told him that they were getting part of the food we didn't use, so we really didn't mind.

After supper with the men, we went back to dress and I went to a number of movie theatres in different areas to deliver a message from the president to the men. Finally we went to the officers' club dance. It was a delightfully cool evening. The most beautiful tropical mood made it almost as bright as day. One of the blessings of being stationed in Trinidad is that the nights are cool, and one sleeps under a blanket although the days may be very warm.

At 4 a.m. I was awakened by what sounded like a fog horn, but it was just a severe tropical rain, however, and like most tropical rains, did not last long.

There are snakes on this island, but fortunately I didn't see any and nobody seems to be really troubled by them. There are a number of malaria cases in the hospital, but the malaria control people are doing a wonderful piece of work and there are fewer and fewer cases.

On the whole, in all the islands, health seemed good among the men, and the hospitals and clinics do a good job of prevention as well as of cure.

Good Night, Sweet Prince

The Life & Times of John Barrymore —based on the new best seller

BY GENE FOWLER
Illustrations by James Montgomery Flagg

"When do we start?" he asked. It was Jack!

Studio officials were tearing their hair as expensive "extras" slept on the deck of the whaling ship and Barrymore could not be found.

Then, toward noon, one of the sleepers—a man dressed like a hobo—yawned, and sat up. He asked distinctly, "Well, when do we start!" It was Barrymore! He had come directly to the boat from the party, had boarded the craft, then fallen asleep.

When The Sea Beast was completed, Jack decided to re-examine his life as objectively as possible, to consider thoughtfully what happiness might still be his. Though he seemed and looked young, Jack was 43 years old when he met Dolores, who was in her twenties.

They were deeply in love but Dolores' parents hardly approved of Barrymore as a suitor. He was separated from Michael Strange but not divorced. Jack now professed a foreboding that were he to win his freedom and marry Dolores their love somehow might languish. He believed that for him a dark spell lay on the institution and he shrank from a third attempt.

Jack decided to get away to think. He chartered an 80-foot cabin cruiser, The Gypsy, together with its captain and crew of five men. He sailed away on what he called "a quest for myself." Dolores was at the dock to see him off.

Jack stood at the stern rail of the cruiser, saying goodbye to the lovely girl with whom he was madly in love. The afternoon of Sunday, Dec. 27, 1925, was fair with an off-shore breeze.

Barrymore had promised himself not to drink any hard liquor while on this voyage. He apparently wanted to have a clear head for his ponderings. He swiftly returned to his oldtime activity of muscle and of brain. The sea cleansed him of the past.

At night he labored on the ship's log, the only personal diary he ever kept. In it, he referred often to Dolores, calling her "Winkie." He wrote long letters, to his beloved. Clementine, the monkey, watched these peculiar reactions of her master with solemn interest and possibly a touch of jealousy.

The Gypsy slipped southward along the coast, heading for the southern tip of the Mexican peninsula of lower California. Night found Jack sleeping peacefully for the first time in many months.

Continued Monday.

One and three-eighths pounds raw shrimp or 3 cans shrimp, 3 medium sized onions, 2 bay leaves, 2 garlic cloves, dash of white pepper, 1 1-3 cups boiled potatoes, 1-3 cup celery, 2 inches in length, cooked; 1 1-3 cups fricasee sauce, 1½ cup small onions, boiled.

Wash shrimp and cook in cold water to which salt has been added. Season with the three onions sliced, pepper, bay leaves and garlic let come to boil. Remove from fire. Leave in water to cool for one hour. Peal shrimp and clean by removing black vein.

Into each of four individual greased pie dishes place equal portions of the shrimp, celery, potatoes, peas and one small onion. Pour over fricassee sauce. Cover with rich biscuit dough. Bake in a moderate ovem (375 degrees F.) for 25 minutes.

Minute Make-Ups

In choosing your face powder be careful to select correct shades lest you have shadows. Powder one shade deeper than your skin tone works up to match exactly. A darker-than-skin-tone makeup gives a natural look if chosen just one shade deeper. But if you go in for very dark powder and makeup creams you will have deep shadows that make for lines. So watch that Shade and Shadow effect!

Debunker

When people speak of democracy as a system of politics, they are missing the true meaning of the term. Democracy is Christianity. It is a government based on Christ's plea to "love thy neighbor as thyself." In his book, "The American Way to Happiness," Park Hunting-ton points out that unselfishness is the basic principle of democracy. He said the spirit of the Good Samaritan is the ideal of such government. Democracy will stand or fall according to the way we practice Christianity, for it is the Christian way. Selfishness, hate and fear destroy it.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

There seem to be times in the life of any child when he has periods of wakefulness. Dr. Arnold Gesell has named these "periods of disequilibrium when growth is most actively taking place."

He writes, "At 15 months and at 21 months the child often wakes during the night, and, in an almost whimsical manner remains awake for an hour or two."

These are wakeful periods without apparent cause, but there is another period of typical wakefulness which arrives for the nursing baby at a time when weaning is imminent. The mother who has nursed her baby successfully for nine or ten months seldom thinks of a breast deficiency as a cause of her baby's behavior. But the ease with which babies slip into good sleeping habits again, once they have been weaned, is evidence enough that this conduct means a need for weaning.

Mrs. T. W. L. has a 10-months-old baby who, for the last two weeks has been waking at 2 a.m. "He is a very healthy child and he wants to get up and play. He weighs 24½ pounds.

"I nurse him at 6 a.m. and 10 a.m. I give him cereal, an egg yolk and a nursing. At 2 p.m. he gets strained vegetables, mashed banana and a nursing. He has orange juice and cod liver oil at 4 p.m. and goes to bed at 8 to 8:30. Is that right?"

Personally, I seen no reason why he shouldn't be settled for the night after the 6 p.m. feeding. And his feeding could be enlarged. In fact the mashed banana at 2 p.m. could be replaced by a pudding, and either mashed banana or custard, or baked potato or cottage cheese, given at night along with the strained fruit and the nursing.

In beginning to wean, substitute a formula for the 2 p.m. nursing. Next week, omit the 10 a.m. nursing and give a bottle. The third week first the 6 a.m. and then the 6 p.m. nursings can be replaced by bottles.

For an initial bottle you may try 2 ounces of fresh, boiled milk, or 3 of evaporated milk, with boiled water to make 8 ounces and one teaspoon of some form of sugar, corn syrup or maltose, preferably.

By the time the baby is weaned you may be able to increase these proportions until the baby is getting either 7 ounces of fresh milk or 3½ of evaporated with water to make 8 ounces and then eventually all fresh milk, or four of evaporated and four of boiled water. The rest of the program is fine.

Our leaflet, "Weaning the Breast-fed Baby," may be had by sending a 4-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope together with your request for it to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

Calgarian Is Given Control Board Post

OTTAWA, March 25. — (CP) — Gordon W. Withell of Calgary has been appointed assistant to J. Gerald Godsoe, chairman of the Industries Control Board, the munitions department announced last night. He was formerly on the staff of a motor car company, and has been deputy priorities officer for nearly a year, and will continue in that post in addition to assuming his new duties.

Canuck Wrens Do Many Jobs

By HELEN BANNERMAN

OTTAWA, March 25.— (CP) — Diminutive and dynamic, Cmdr. Adelaide Helen Grant Sinclair of Toronto is chief of Canada's girls in navy blue—members of the Women's Royal Canadian Naval Service.

Mrs. Sinclair was working in the Prices Board's research section at Ottawa after nearly 20 years' close association with groups of young women when the Navy asked her last March to become director of the Wrens. Eager to be working with girls again, she agreed and sailed for England for a four-month training course with the Women's Royal Naval Service, parent of the Canadian force. She returned to Canada with rank of lieutenant-commander.

Sept. 18, 1943, stands out for Cmdr. Sinclair because on that day she became director of the W.R.C.N.S., was promoted to commander, and smashed a bottle of champagne over the bow of the corvette Ship, Fort Esperance at United Shipyards in Montreal, first Canadian Wren ever to christen a ship.

A brisk, grey-haired woman in early 40's, Cmdr. Sinclair is proud of her Wrens.

"Our Canadian girls overseas went through bombings like veterans side by side with the British Wrens," she said.

Although Canada's Wrens were organized by W.R.N.S. officers, the two services are different. In Britain for instance the Wrens are an auxiliary force through the historical accident that they were started before the war. In Canada the Wrens are a part of the Navy's Volunteer Reserve. Also the Canadian Wren officers hold the same ranks as men, while the W.R.N.S. has its own ranks.

Main difference between the work of the British and Canadian services is the jobs the British girls do aboard ship, manning harbor craft and working as coders on transports. The Canadians so far are "landlubbers."

WIDE RANGE OF JOBS

"In the beginning it was a question of seeing what women could do in civilian life and getting them to do it in the navy," Cmdr. Sinclair said. "At first the work categories were domestic. Now there are dozens and dozens more categories involving highly-technical and secret work."

Cmdr. Sinclair's day, filled with appointments with Wren officers in training, details of administration and Wren problems, often last until midnight. Only Saturday and Sunday are a nice peaceful time to finish up work that couldn't be squeezed in through the week."

Her appointment as director of nearly 4,000 Wrens is the culmination of close contact with various groups of young women.

Cmdr. Sinclair graduated from University College, University of Toronto in 1922 and was assistant to the dean of women. She left college for three years while earning her master's degree. After graduation she went to L'Ecole (Eng.) School of Economics and University of Berlin she returned to the library staff of Toronto as lecturer in political science.

Marriage to Donald B. Sinclair, Toronto lawyer, ended her teaching career in 1930 but she continued active in executive work. They had no children and when her husband died in 1938 she turned again to hard work. Elected president of four fraternity she travelled four years in the United States and Canada.

An English physicist once estimated it would take 300 billion-billion-billion electrons to weigh one ounce.

The Edmonton organization of the Alberta Women's Institutes keeps in touch with the country branches, arranges conferences and conventions, keeps in touch with out-of-town members who come to hospital in the city, meets children coming to the city for treatment, and looks after them.

In an interview Friday afternoon with Mrs. H. H. Rogers, an untiring member of the W.I., an Edmonton Bulletin reporter was told the W.I. generally speaking, has taken the lead in many public achievements.

A radium fund was started in 1936. The W.I. raised the money to purchase a unit of radium, which was given to the Alberta government, the use of it to be free to anyone needing it. This was the first step in the free treatment of cancer.

Mrs. Rogers

During 1943 the W.I. raised $12,000, and through the Red Cross Society, jam was sent to the children of Britain. Institute members work for the Red Cross as well as keeping up their peacetime work. Members gave 900 ditty bags to the Navy League last year.

The Federated Women's Institutes of Canada passed its 25th anniversary in February of this year, and many branches throughout the length and breadth of Canada are having some sort of birthday celebration, even if in a small way. Each branch is contributing something to a Federated W.I. fund as a birthday gift to be used for some purpose of establishing a back log of financial security.

FIRST W.I.

The first W.I. in the world was organized in February, 1897, just 47 years ago, the year of Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee.

The idea of co-ordinating the work of the W.I. across Canada and thus making a National Federation was conceived in the mind of an Alberta woman, Miss Mary MacIsaac, then superintendent of Women's Institutes for Alberta, and to bring about this, a meeting of leading W.I. women from all the provinces was called in February, 1919, in Winnipeg.

Mrs. Arthur Murphy, Edmonton, was the first president of the Federation fund, on a voluntary corresponding secretary from 1921 until 1935.

Objects of the Federation were: To promote educational, moral, social and civic measures by bringing into communication by correspondence the various Provincial Women's Institutes and like organizations throughout the Dominion; to act as a clearing house for the activities of the various federated organizations, and to initiate and promote national campaigns in home making, child welfare and other community efforts.

A detinite campaign is carried on by the W.I. to reduce maternal mortality in Canada. The Peace Garden between Canada and the United States, in which the W.I. has an acre planted by the nine provinces of Canada, is another project of the W.I. Exhibits at the Exhibitions of Alberta pantry, education, and public health displays, and natural resources exhibits and demonstrations of Alberta Girls' Clubs are features of the organization.

WAR WORK

Of recent years the work of the W.I. has ben, and is, war work. Always a supporter of the Red Cross it has redoubled its aid and supplemented this work with an active program of work for the Navy League, particularly the Merchant Seamen. Two mobile kitchens have been purchased and sent overseas.

Mrs. Cameron Dow of Quebec is the present president. The W.I. board has decided to leave the raising of war funds to the provinces as they all have war projects of their own which require their attention.

Miss Z. Chadwick, R. Jennings Are Married at Home Service

A quiet informal wedding took place Friday at 7 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Chadwick, 14604 Saunnil, avenue, when their only daughter Miss Zola Marion Chadwick, and Harvey S. Jennings, eldest son of George F. Jennings and the late Mrs. Jennings of Towanda, Penn., were united in marriage. The marriage took place in front of the fireplace which was decorated with blue iris, white narcissus, pink tulips and fern. Tall tapers held in star crystal holders, with tiny flowers at the base, completed the decorations.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was frocked in a dress-maker suit of light turquoise blue in soft wool. She wore a sailor hat in brown felt with brown veiling. Her accessories were in brown suede, and she wore a shoulder corsage of gardenias, sweetheart roses, and violets.

Miss Eileen Wood was the bride's only attendent, wearing a brown pin stripe tailored suit. Her hat was a stall brown felt model, trimmed with brown veiling. Her accessories were in brown and a corsage of gardenias and yellow narcissus was pinned to her shoulder.

The best man was Tom Seitz.

A reception was held after the ceremony to the immediate family and relatives.

Mrs. Chadwick was smartly attired in a two-piece frock of aqua blue crepe. Her accessories were in black, and she wore a shoulder corsage of white roses.

The bride's table was set in an oatmeal mark cloth centered with a three tiered wedding cake ornamented with a silver bell, and surrounded by white tulips, with yellow narcissus, and blue iris placed on the table.

The bride and bridegroom will take up residence temporarily in the grand 10649.99 avenue.

STOCKINGS CHECK ON LADY'S MORALE

BELFAST (CP)—When Lady Brooke, wife of Sir Basil Brooke, premier minister of Northern Ireland, met Hugh Dalton, president of the Board of Trade, recently, she was wearing stockinges which had holes in them.

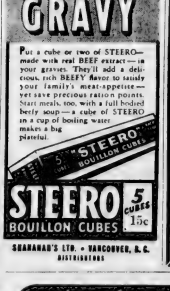

Sir Basil told this later at a luncheon to Mr. Dalton and "confessed" that he had had the tail of his shirt cut off to make a collar—"not for the first time."

Sir Basil said that Mr. Dalton had been tackled by quite a lot of women complaining that stockings are not all they might be.

"Mr. Dalton realizes that above everything else the morale of the ladies must be kept high and if a lady has a hole in her stockings, then her morale falls low," he said.

Asks Full Inquiry On Cancer Work

By C. H. HIGGINBOTHAM
Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau
Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, March 25.—Hon. Ian Mackenzie, minister of pensions and health, will request the medical faculty of the University of Manitoba to make a full inquiry into cancer research work conducted by Dr. J. R. Davidson. A letter embracing this request will go forward to Winnipeg Saturday.

In parliament Thursday, Mr. Mackenzie, in reply to questions asked by Harry Leader, said that he had heard unofficially that the National Research Council had rejected the plea for financial assistance to enable Dr. Davidson to carry out his research work. A telegram to this effect was sent to Dr. Davidson.

In an interview yesterday Mr. Mackenzie said that he wished to explore every avenue to ensure that absolute fairness was shown to Dr. Davidson.

"All of us are deeply interested in any step taken to eliminate the scourge of cancer. We want to be absolutely fair in this case. I propose to request the medical faculty of the University of Manitoba to make a full inquiry into the Winnipeg doctor's researches and to make a report to me. They are fully acquainted with the background and history of this work and should be able to help us."

Navy Is Starting Recruiting Drive

OTTAWA, March 25—(CP)—The Royal Canadian Navy announced today that recruiting, restricted for a time to specialized categories, now is in full swing again with trained and untrained men required in many categories.

The announcement said many applicants are sought for the seaman branch and also many with mechanical experience for duties in engine rooms. Other categories open include signalmen, cooks, stewards, patrolmen and various specialized branches.

Minumum age requirement is 18 years or 17½ with consent of parents or guardian. Applicants up to 50 years will be considered and their services utilized ashore or afloat, depending on qualifications and physical fitness.

Applicants from points where there is no recruiting centre may contact recruiting officers by long-distance telephone by asking the operator for the nearest naval recruiting centre. In the case of bona fide applicants, charges may be reversed.

Prices Steady on Livestock Markets

Ottawa, March 25.—Most Canadian cattle markets reported steady prices during the week, although sales were inclined to drag towards the close, the agriculture department reported yesterday.

At Winnipeg, Moose Jaw and Saskatoon, price declines were from 25-50 cents on nearly all killing cattle, due principally to increasing receipts.

Calf trade experienced the usual seasonal declines in prices, working lower by 50 cents to $1.50. Lambs gained 25 cents at Toronto, and elsewhere were steady on small supplies. Hog prices for the most part continued unchanged.

Calgary closed steady with most steers $11-11.50 and $11.60, while Edmonton had good action at generally steady prices, good steers making $10.75-11.25 and $11.50. The best of the offering at Prince Albert sold up to $11, Moose Jaw $11, Regina $11.25, Saskatoon $11.50-11.75, but later $11, and Vancouver $11.50.

C.N.R. Budgeting For $421,700,000

OTTAWA, March 25.—(CP)—Canadian National Railways are budgeting for a 1944 operating revenue of $421,700,000 compared to last year's budgeting revenue of $400,000,000 and actual revenue of $440,615,955, it was disclosed yesterday in figures presented to the commons by Transport Minister Michaud.

The system is budgeting for $333,200,000 operating expenses compared to last year's budgeted expenses of $311,500,000 and the actual expenses of $324,476,670.

Thus the 1944 budgeted net operating revenue is $88,500,000, the same as last year, but compared to the actual net revenue last year of $116,140,285.

OTTAWA, March 25.—(CP)—Uniform accounting practices for Canadian railways was recommended in the Canadian National Railways audit report by George A. Touche and Co. of Montreal tabled yesterday in the commons by Transport Minister Michaud.

The report referred to the uniform depreciation accounting system made effective in the United States by the interstate commerce commission last year. Introduction of such a plan in Canada would not be practicable until after the war because of the work involved.

London Undergoes Sharp Fire Attack

By EDWARD W. BEATTIE
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
Copyright, 1944, by British United Press

LONDON, March 25.—A few German squadrons gave London one of the sharpest fire raids since the 1940-41 blitz last night but all of the biggest blazes were controlled before the all clear sounded early today.

The Nazis dropped hundreds of incendiaries, interspersed with a number of explosives, in various parts of greater London, but hundreds of volunteers assisted fire-fighters to nullify the enemy's effort to burn the capital.

For a few thousand Londoners near the bombs, it was sort of a pale imitation of the destruction going on in Berlin last night as the Royal air force renewed the attack on the German capital. For the remainder it was like most recent London raids—a big fireworks display which almost was impersonal because so much fire was going up at the raiders and so comparatively little was coming down.

Last night's was the longest raid of the recent series. The barrage reached a new peak of intensity as the Nazi planes bored across the sky. At least eight raiders were shot down.

Fractional Gains On Chicago Mart

CHICAGO, Mar. 25—(AP)—An insufficient supply of feed grains in terminal markets to meet the commercial demand supported a fractional upturn in grain prices today. Ceiling prices were paid for May oats, barley and wheat during the session, with wheat dropping slightly below the maximum at times.

Commission houses were generally on the buying side with offerings being supplied mainly by local traders. There appeared to be a good quantity of May wheat available at the ceiling. Rye drew support from a report that Sweden was in the market for some of this grain, although there was no official confirmation of the report.

At the close wheat was ⅛ lower to ⅝ higher, oats were ⅛ lower to ⅜ higher, rye was unchanged to ⅜ higher, and barley was up ⅛-1⅛, May $1.28.

Wheat: May 1.73⅜-¼; July 1.70⅜-½; Sept. 1.69¼; Dec. 1.69¼.

Oats: May 82-81⅞; July 79⅜; Sept. 76⅞; Dec. 77⅛.

Rye: May 1.30¾-⅞; July 1.30⅝-⅞; Sept. 1.29⅞-1.30; Dec. 1.31⅛-¼.

Barley: May 1.28; July 1.26; Sept 1.21⅜.

Wheat, sample grade dark northern spring musty 1.64⅞. No corn or oats.

Barley, malting 1.25-1.44½ nominal feed 1.15-1.22½ nominal.

Edmonton Life Underwriters End Congress

The Edmonton Life Underwriters' Association one-day educational congress closed with a banquet at the Corona hotel Friday night.

President of the association, Karl Dingle, presided at the dinner which was attended by nearly 100 Edmonton Life Underwriters.

Guest speaker of the evening, Dr. W. A. Atkinson, speaking on the subject, "My Pet Hates," compared the philosophy of hatred employed by the Axis countries with the firm resolution, without hatred, of the Allied nations during the present war.

HATRED STRATEGY

"There never was another time in history when there seemed to be so much hate in the world as there is today," he said. "Half the world have actually chosen hatred as their strategy and propaganda. Axis leaders feel their strongest weapon is the propaganda of hate. Fifth columnists spread the doctrine of hatred among citizens."

Dr. Atkinson pointed out that the British public's unwillingness to hate had proved their mettle in this war. "The Allies have proved they have no part in using hate as propaganda," he said.

"In this war we see much of benevolence among our allies. We have established many evidences of good-will, great campaigns in progress for the feeding of hungry people of Europe after the war, show how the belief is growing that conditions everywhere must be bettered for the good of the common man.

"Only those things which cannot be shaken will remain and I believe that we are seeing the last kick of the awful thing, hate. Everything points to the great vitality of our way of life and that nothing but ruin and destruction can be found in the philosophy of hatred," he said.

VOTE OF THANKS

R. M. Moore introduced the speaker and Sl. F. Palmer moved a vote of thanks to Dr. Atkinson and to the executive of the association for the excellence of the congress.

The guests were entertained by Gordon Nairn who displayed exceptional ability to tell funny stories in a variety of dialects, and by Sgt. Frank Herman, of the U.S. Army, who presented a clever program of "black magic," tricks.

Seated at the head table were: Earl Dingle, president; Dr. W. A. Atkinson; A. Gordon Nairn; John J. Gormley, C.L.U.; D. N. McLean, C.L.U., secretary; K. U. McKenzie, R. M. Scott, J. F. Naismith, W. J. Monoghan, R. E. Staples, R. M. Moore, C.L.U., and L. B. Shaw.

Red Cross Total Now $172,010.04

The official three week 1944 Red Cross campaign for funds will come to a close Saturday night although officials said Saturday that contributions from "people who want to do their share," will still be accepted.

The total contribution in Edmonton reported Friday was $172,010.04 as compared to the approximate $200,000 campaign goal.

However, officials pointed out, on the basis of past experience it is anticipated that the goal will most certainly be reached as a substantial amount of contributions usually come in after the closing of the campaign.

For example, one official said, business firms whose fiscal year ends in July will probably make their contributions some time before the summer.

The same holds true on the country total, which was $111,000 as of Friday. Some country points have still not reported their drive totals.

Nuns Elude Japs, Now Serve Canadians in India

—R.C.A.F. Photo

Four Royal Canadian Air Force officers who visited a rest home near Bombay were surprised to find two fellow Canadians stationed there permanently—two members of the Grey Sisters of the Immaculate Conception, Pembroke, Ont. The nuns—Sister St. Kenneth (Katherine Radey, 39 Lockwood Rd., Toronto) and Sister Mary Vianney (Iona Bertrand, Fort Coulonge, Que.)—reached India after an amazing escape under Japanese strafing from their mission in China. An all-Canadian tea was arranged, and here the six are shown with their hostess, Mrs. S. A. Seddon of Northampton, Eng., who operates the rest home. L-R: Left to right: Flying Officer Grant Nelson, 39 Elgin St., St. Thomas, Ont.; Sister St. Kenneth; Sister Mary Vianney; Flight Lieut. Tom Smith, Crystal City, Man.; Mrs. Seddon; Flying Officer Rowland Lorimer, 4521 8th Ave., Regina, and Flying Officer Fred Lonsdale, Marshall, Sask. The nuns told of fleeing on foot through mountain passes, penniless and without belongings, and of hiding in an open grave while Jap planes strafed and bombed. When they reached India, Sister Mary Vianney weighed 70 pounds—50 below normal.

Short Course Program Ends With Banquet

The seventh annual Alberta Land Inspectors' Association short course, jointly sponsored with the Edmonton chapter of the Appraisal Institute of Canada at the University of Alberta, concluded its three day program with a banquet at the Macdonald hotel Friday night.

Guest speaker was Robert F. Gard, director Alberta Folklore and Local History Project, University of Alberta, who related some of the great legends and folk tales of Alberta.

He suggested the establishment of a provincial archives in Alberta which would record and keep permanently the stories of the great western tradition and thus lead to a better understanding of the peoples of Alberta.

ENDEAR HOMELAND

He pointed out that the archives, containing the natural literature, art and traditions, could serve to give the young people an understanding and love of their homeland.

"This country has a wonderful future." Mr. Gard said, and "that future can be more permanently built if we can establish it on the colorful history of the past."

Among some of the stories he told, was the story of the "Edmonton Rebellion," when the Home Guard was called upon to prevent the moving of the centre of the city to the South Side.

Earlier in the program, Capt. Harry Baker, U.S. Army, performed some of his magic tricks.

AT HEAD TABLE

Those seated at the head table included J. W. C. Burns, president of the Alberta Land Inspectors' association, who acted as chairman; W. J. McLeod and H. D. Dunlop, chairman and secretary of the Edmonton branch of the Appraisal Institute, respectively; D. Cameron and Frank Peers, extension department, and dean of agriculture R. Sinclair, University of Alberta; Mr Gard and Prof. M. G. Burlingame, Montana State College history department, and Professor H. G. Merriam, Montana State University, English department. The latter are in Edmonton on a tour of Western Canada.

Other guests included members of the department of extension and the agricultural faculty of the University of Alberta. There were about 85 persons present at the banquet.

Ten women at Mirror supplied meals to four train carloads of soldiers who were passing through Mirror on their way from Calgary to Edmonton Wednesday. On arrival in Edmonton the soldiers expressed great appreciation for the efforts of the women on their behalf.

FUNNY BUSINESS

"It's a wonderful chair—you'll appreciate it when you're not in it."

Former Resident Is Dead in South

Former resident of Edmonton, Mrs. J. A. Holden died recently in Glendale, Cal., according to word received here by her sister, Miss Cora Grant, 53 MacLean Block.

Mrs. Holden for many years was a resident of the Strathcona district, where she took an active part in work of Knox United church. She is survived by two children, Robert Grant Holden and Mildred Holden, both of Glendale.

Need Production For Employment

"Production of capital goods to maintain and increase production facilities seems necessary to create employment and prevent future periods of distress," Reg. T. Rose, executive secretary of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, said Friday night.

Addressing the concluding session of the third So-Ed course at the Y.M.C.A., Mr. Rose pointed out the real trouble for the widespread unemployment and distress during the depression was due to the fact that "the production of capital goods (plant, equipment and production machinery) was limited, and not to the decrease in the production of consumer goods, which only went down 10 per cent during the depression."

Other speakers included the Rev. Canon A. M. Trendall, S. Frank Page, Verrall Barford on "Moments Musical," and Len Bercuson.

Sylvan Hillerud led a discussion on recreation for various age groups, assisted by Alf Flowers, Ruth Douglas, Pauling Arnett and B. Marsolus.

The third So-Ed course was sponsored by J. Lewis Browlee, Olive Gage, N. Stuart Harris, Don McGillivray, Joan Rice, Beatrice Osland, Bob Torrance, Alf Flowers, and Alf Jackson, under the supervision of Ralph Young, Y.M.C.A. secretary.

Harold Sprague was chairman of the executive committee; Penny Pryor, secretary; Betty Sands, treasurer and registrar; William Kostash, advisor; H. Bircham Van Horne and Reta Speers, educational chairmen; and Peggie Campbell, publicity chairman.

Five Albertans were on the team which won a Canadian division (U.K.) soccer championship recently, by a score of 3-1. The Albertans were Sgt. J. Jeffries, Carstairs; Tpr. G. W. Mungall, Tpr. M. D. Balfour, and Cpl. F. B. Moan, all of Edmonton; and RSM. J. MacKenzie of East Coulee.

Troops Operate Radio Station: Builds Morale

When soldiers own and operate their own radio station program troubles should be at an end. At any rate such a radio station does exist at Skagway, Alaska, and is currently in full time operation for the benefit of troops and civilian population.

And the G.I. station is proving the most popular thing since the gold rush of 1898.

Broadcasting from six o'clock in the evening until midnight, Station KSKA is proving to be a morale builder extraordinary, not only for military personnel, but, as well, for the townsfolk who, for years, had been virtually without radio entertainment or information of any sort.

Skagway's geographical location and the contour of surrounding land makes outside radio reception on the ordinary home radio extremely difficult at the best of times.

But the army changed that. G.I. complaints about the lack of, or lateness of, news came ultimately to the ears of Private Gordon Bunnell of Kirkland, Washington, who in civilian life, made a hobby of radio. Immediately Bunnell laid plans for the establishment of a radio station.

He interested three other members of the ACs in the project, including Pvt. Glenn Churchey of Seattle, a former announcer-operator at Everett, Wash., Seattle, and Pasadena, Sgt. Darrell Harris, an AC2c clerk, went to work announcing along with Cpl. James McDaniel. Pvt. Grant Yerden, with four years experience on the stage, became program director.

PEOPLE HELPED

When the townfolk and military personnel of Skagway first began to receive the program, the word spread like wildfire. Soon every radio at the post and in town received KSKA. Contributions were sent to the five men to help them to purchase equipment and recordings. A letter from the city council, endorsing their action and offering co-operation, was received. The Mayor of Skagway not only wrote a letter of appreciation, but, as well, enclosed a donation.

DONATED ROOM

The United Service organizations donated a room in their building for use as a studio. The Special Services branch of the army gave invaluable aid in the form of talent and scripts from which programs could be re-written to suit local needs.

Carpenter Surplus Is Reported Here

Termination of construction projects in this district, has resulted in a surplus of carpenters, according to A. O. MacLachlan, acting manager of the local office of the Unemployment Insurance and Selective Service Commission.

"A large number of carpenters have registered at the local employment office within the last few weeks." Mr. MacLachlan said. This is in direct contrast with the situation a few months ago when this type of tradesman was at a premium and it was impossible to get qualified carpenters.

Social Crediters Will Meet Monday

The Edmonton Social Credit Constituence Association will meet at the group's headquarters at 9974 Jasper at 8 p.m. Monday.

Purpose of the meeting is to select delegates to attend the national convention to be held in Toronto next month. Number of delegates will be at the discretion of the meeting.

Dates will be chosen for the nominating convention to select candidates for five provincial seats and East and West Edmonton Dominion seats.

Donald Graham, Western Pioneer, Dies: 95 Years

Pioneer of Western Canada and long-time resident of Edmonton, Donald Graham died Friday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Duncan Durrand, 10142 83 avenue. He was 95 years old, and had been ill only a few days.

Born in Scotland, Mr. Graham came to Canada 77 years ago. He once said that dime novels had led him to seek adventure in the new world. He tried to settle down in an uncle's law office in Guelph and then headed west for an exciting career; of soldiering, hunting, prospecting and lumbering.

He first came to Edmonton in 1872 crossing the prairies in a Red River cart, and for a time panned gold in the North Saskatchewan river. Later he went to the southern part of the province to hunt buffalo. He helped the C.P.R. to survey in the west in 1872 and in 1876 started farming in the Okanagan Valley.

He was a member of the British Columbia legislature from 1894 to 1898 under Premier Davey and Premier Turner. He was a justice of the peace for 35 years. He returned to Edmonton 12 years ago.

Mr. Graham is survived by his wife, two daughters, Mrs. Duncan Durrand and Mrs. William Durrand of Edmonton; three sons, Robert of Hanna, Alberta; Donald, Mount, Texas, and Charles of Los Angeles; 15 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

A funeral service will be held from Hainstock's funeral chapel at 2 p.m. Tuesday. The Rev. Elgin G. Turnbull, minister of Knox United church, will officiate. Burial will be in Mount Pleasant cemetery.

R.C.M.P. Instructed To Make Cafe Raid

On instructions from the attorney-general's department, R.C.M.P. officers Wednesday night walked into the Oriental Coffee Shop, Jasper avenue, and the premises formerly occupied by a city meat market on 97 street, and placed 47 men under arrest for gambling charges, it was announced by Col. W. F. W. Hancock, officer commanding the R.C.M.P.

Hon. Lucien Maynard, K.C., attorney-general for the province, backed Col. Hancock's announcement that the R.C.M.P. were given instructions to make the raid. Hon. Mr. Maynard said further, "I won't make any other statement until after the prosecutions."

Comment was voiced in the city as a result of the action of the R.C.M.P. in holding these raids. Chief Constable Reginald Jennings of the Edmonton police force refused to make any statement. Other officials said that it has been the custom of the morality department of the city police force to hold investigations into such work.

Mayor Fry said that he did not know about the raids until Friday. The city was not informed beforehand that the raids were to take place. The Mayor stated that there has always been splendid co-operation between the city police force and the R.C.M.P., and he did not understand why the raids were made without city police co-operation.
